French Hold-Up A Truce

New Demands Delay West German Treaty With The Big Three

BONN, Germany, May 24—(AP)—New demands by France today were reported holding up final agreement on a West German peace contract and a unified European army. But there were indications that the western Big Three Foreign Ministers may be overcoming French objections in their closed sessions going on here.

Secretary of State Acheson's official press spokesman said tonight: "As far as the Americans are concerned, no Frenchman has ever told us they would not sign (the two accords). We still feel it will work out and that a peace settlement will be signed Monday."

Further encouragement was give in a statement by a French cabinet official in Paris that "under present conditions, signature (of the pacts) could come at the appointed time.

A main French demand was for a strong British-American security guarantee against any chance of a rearmed Germany breaking out of the projected European army framework and again embarking on conquest. Acheson's spokesman said progress had been made on this hot issue and that a "satisfactory solution is expected."

Congress Must Approve First

Earlier an American spokesman had said the British-American guarantee had been agreed to in substance but a question remained whether it could be put into a form acceptable to the French Parliament without prior approval by the U. S. Congress. At any rate, the U. S. spokesman added, no U. S. guarantee would be announced in Bonn.

Another French question on the status of French troops in Germany has been turned over to a committee of experts. As an ally of West German in the proposed European army, France would want to retain present occupation privileges, such as low-cost housing.

British and American spokesmen here would not comment on unofficial reports that the French were making various other demands as the price for signing the pacts with Germany. These were reported to include increased U. S. aid for France's armed forces, and strong British-American support for France's position as a colonial power in troubled North Africa. U. S. and British spokesmen said only that these topics had not been discussed during the day.

Ministers Go Into Huddle

Acheson, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman huddled in a special night session after a big formal dinner given by the Allied High Commissioners.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer also was a guest at the dinner. A previous announcement had said Adenauer, who is his own foreign minister, would attend the night conference, but it was stated later he would not meet again with the other three until tomorrow morning.

First news to reach here on the French objections came today in reports from Paris that the cabinet had told Schuman not to sign the two pacts unless French demands were met.

The three western foreign ministers earlier today spent hours trying to compose their differences. Twice they postponed a scheduled meeting with Adenauer on the peace contract, expected to give West Germany virtual sovereignty in return for her joining the western defense partnership. Finally, without announcing the outcome of their discussions, the big three called in Adenauer. He met with them for two hours.

UN Patrols Raid Enemy Positions On East Front

SEOUL, Korea, Sunday, May 25—(AP)—Allied patrols raided Red positions on the eastern Korean battlefront Saturday, striking in the predawn darkness with hand grenades and machineguns.

The U. S. Eighth Army reported one patrol wiped out a 35-man Communist platoon in a clash lasting one hour, 35 minutes. The Allied patrol captured 2,500 rounds of Red machinegun ammunition, 22 hand grenades and small arms.

U. S. Fifth Air Force fighters and bombers followed up their big raids Thursday and Friday on Kiyang with strikes on Communist front line bunkers. The Air Force reported several areas on the front were left strewn with shatteerd timbers.

Other fighter-bombers pounded the battered Red rail system Saturday. Pillots reported cutting the tracks in 93 places, hitting 20 boxcars and two bridges.

The Fifth Air Force reported that the week ended Friday was one of the worst of the war in the balance sheet of air losses—12 Allied planes, including five in aerial combat, compared with four Red jets downed.

Three U. S. F-86 Sabrejets and two F-84 Thunderjets were shot down by the Communist pilots. The other seven Allied planes were destroyed by anti-aircraft fire.

Air Force figures for the week did not include Naval air losses. Rescue flights indicated there were at least two.

Matthews Withdraws From Governor Race

ST. LOUIS, May 24—(AP)—Luman F. Matthews, St. Louis County supervisor, formally announced his withdrawal from the race for the Republican gubernatorial nomination today and said he would support State Rep. Howard Elliott of Ladue.

Matthews said some time ago he would withdraw because of the press of business. It was reported at the time, however, that the move was in the interest of party harmony.

Elliott supporters hailed Matthews' endorsement as the last hurdle in getting the undivided backing of the county Republican organization. Elliott's home also is in St. Louis County.

Matthews said in his endorsement of Elliott that the major problems of the St. Louis metropolitan area can be solved only at the state level and that Elliott as governor could be of great help in the matter.

Elliott has represented St. Louis County in the state legislature for 16 years.

Ike Pulls Into Lead In West

His Backers Claim 20 More Delegates In Washington State

SPOKANE, Wash., May 24—(AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower scored a thumping 20-4 victory over Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) tonight in a bitter, drawn out battle for Washington's 24 votes for the Republican presidential nomination.

By The Associated Press

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower won the first test in Washington state's Republican convention yesterday and appeared likely to get a majority of the state's 24 votes for the Republican presidential nomination.

Eisenhower backers claimed they could win 20, and possibly all 24 of the votes.

But backers of Sen. Taft of Ohio still clung to their contention they might come out with a majority. There was some talk, too, that Taft forces might walk out in protest against a unit voting rule adopted by the key Seattle delegation.

Delaware Democrats elected six delegates to the Democratic National convention, with one openly supporting Vice President Alben Barkley for the presidential nomination, and the other five delegates uninstructed and unpledged.

Maryland's 24 National Republican convention delegates votes were pledged to Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin on the first ballot but Taft supporters claimed they would get a majority of them after that.

Taft Claims Maryland

While Taft supporters at the state convention in Baltimore made no open fight to dispute the "favorite son" role of Governor McKeldin, they claimed they had a majority of the delegates elected. McKeldin said he controlled at least 18 but hasn't said which way he might throw them after the first ballot.

Minnesota Republicans Saturday chose three delegates-at-large to complete their slate of 28 which will represent the state at the GOP National convention.

Elected by acclamation at the party's state convention was Gov. C. Elmer Anderson, a supporter of Gen. Dwight Eisenhower.

Chosen from three other nominees were Mrs. C. E. Howard, state chairwoman, and P. K. Peterson, state chairman. The unsuccessful nominee was Bradshaw Mintener, chairman of Minnesotans for Eisenhower.

Peterson and Mrs. Howard have been supporters of Harold E. Stassen, former Minnesota governor and an aspirant for the GOP presidential nomination. Neither Peterson nor Mrs. Howard has made known their second choice.

It's Just A Prelude

Choosing of the delegates-at-large was a prelude to a fight for control of the party at a meeting of the State Central Committee last night.

A delegate favoring Taft was chosen by Alabama Fifth District Republicans at Gadsden. Dr. A. L. Isbell said he would support Taft but would keep an open mind when the National Convention gets down to noming the party's presidential nominee.

A slate of 17 convention delegates "100 per cent for Taft" was named by the Foster faction of Georgia's divided Republican party.

Followers of Mayor Roy G. Foster of Wadley, Ga., twice turned down by the national party organization, expressed belief they have their best chance of being seated in the National Convention.

Signs Indicate Telegraph Fuss Nears Its End

WASHINGTON, May 24—(AP)—A trend toward acceptance of the proposed settlement of the Western Union strike developed tonight on the basis of late returns from nationwide voting among the 30,000 telegraph workers.

An Associated Press tabulation of available returns from a number of cities showed 2,739 workers favoring acceptance of the union-negotiated settlement and 2,086 against acceptance.

The 52-day strike will continue until the outcome of the voting is known. Deadline for ballots is 6 p. m. EST Sunday.

At union headquarters here, Adolph Bruns, president of the Western Union division of the AFL's Commercial Telegraphers' Union, said it was still far too early to give any sort of estimate on the result.

The agreement calls for a 40-hour week without loss in pay for workers who have been on a 45 hour, 20-minute workweek, affecting about half the employes. Those already on a 40-hour week would get a 10-cent hourly bost, messengers a 5-cent-an-hour increase.

Besides the needed ratification by union members, there was another big condition to the settlement: It was hinged to the company's obtaining permission from the Federation Communications Commission (FCC) for a rate increase. The union agreed to back the company plea for higher rates.

The company has not said how big a rate hike it would seek, but union sources said it probably would be 10 per cent.

The Weather

Partly cloudy and slightly warmer northwest and extreme west; generally fair Sunday night; Monday partly cloudy, possibly a few scattered showers or thundershowers extreme west in afternoon or night, high Sunday in 70s.

Born and reared in St. Joseph, he served two years on the editorial staff of the St. Joseph News-Press and Gazette, and just prior to World War II was membership secretary of the St. Joseph Chamber of Commerce.

Serving nearly five years with the Army Air Force, at the time of his separation Bird held the rank of major and was director of training and operations at Brooks Army Air Field, San Antonio, Tex.

Bird re-entered chamber work, following his discharge from the Air Force, as manager of the Marion County Chamber of Commerce at Ocela, Fla., and since Oct. 1948 he has been on the National Chamber staff as program advisor in the Southeastern Division. In that capacity he has spoken to thousands of businessmen in the ten Southeastern states on legislative affairs and government problems. On Oct. 1, he was promoted to his present position as assistant manager of the Southwestern Division with headquarters in Dallas.

Smith Urges Voters To Exercise Privilege

ST. LOUIS, May 24 — (AP) — American citizens who fail to vote were described tonight as sixth columnists producing a major but often forgotten threat to the nation by National Commander John L. Smith of the AMVETS.

In a speech prepared for the annual state convention of Missouri AMVETS, Smith said "Americans rightly denounce and guard against sixth columnists who insidiously try to destroy our democracy—but how many Americans realize that too often only a minority of our citizens are doing the voting?"

Smith said that in 1950 elections only 44 per cent of the eligible voters actually cast ballots. Those who failed to vote are "the sixth columnists who are letting the country down," he said.

By staying away from the polls, Smith warned, Americans are sidestepping their responsibility and playing into the hands of Communism by allowing a "powerful minority group to take over while America sleeps."

Referring to voting records, Smith noted that since 1880 voting has declined percentagewise. In that year, he said, more than 78 per cent of theeligible voters went to the polls—a record that hasn't been duplicated.

Clark Seeks Data On Soviet Intent In The Far East

TOKYO, May 24—(AP)—Gen. Mark W. Clark says he knows the "capabilities" of the Russian military buildup in the Far East, but he would like to know more about Russian "intentions."

"In my briefings since I took command, I have been informed of the increase of Soviet military forces in the Far East," the new commander of United Nations forces said in an interview.

"We know the capabilities of the Russians, but we'd like to know more about their intentions."

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, whom Clark succeeded on May 12, said in Washington this week that the Soviet military machine was building up its Far Eastern forces.

Ridgway's remarks put the information on the record publicly, although it had been of dire concern among officers in the Far East Command for the past year.

"The Chinese have taken advantage of the lull in fighting in Korea to build up their resources," Clark said.

Morale Impresses Clark

"But I am deeply impressed with the high morale of Gen. James A. Van Fleet's Eighth Army and I think he will take care of them if they start anything."

Clark earned his fourth star eight years ago commanding the U. S. Fifth Army and British Eighth Army in Italy. He is an old hand at dealing with the Russians and their satellites.

"When my armies went into Austria from Italy," he said, "we were confronted almost immediately with hundreds of thousands of refugees—DPs—fleeing for their lives from the Red armies and making frantic attempts to place themselves under the protection of the democracies."

Clark said the Russians "could not stand to see those poor people see how well the rest of the world lives and how decently they were being treated by the Allies."

He said the Russians began shouting immediately against the principle of "voluntary repatriation."

"I note there is a great similarity in the line here," Clark said.

The armistice talks at Panmunjom are stalled because the Chinese and North Koreans want back all their prisoners and refuse to allow them a choice in whether or not they are repatriated.

"Its the same thing here," Clark said. "They want these people to come back and be punished."

He Took Over At Dark Hour

When Clark took over from Ridgway the Far East Command headquarters was in an uproar over the kidnaping of a brigadier general by Communist war prisoners.

After the capture it was learned that an embarrassing letter had been handed the Reds to gain the former camp commander's freedom.

Clark decided to make a full breast of the whole affair. It was his first decision as commander in chief.

"The only thing to do was make a clean statement of the whole affair," Clark said. "I wanted the American people to hear it from our side and not hear it from the Communists at Panmunjom.

"I believe we should tell the truth so long as it does not jeopardize our position."

Potato Famine Should Be Over In Three Weeks

WASHINGTON, May 24—(AP)—Farm officials said today the nationwide shortage of potatoes has reached its peak and that housewives should be able to buy normay quantities within three weeks.

While no official forecast of this year's production has been made yet, Agriculture Department experts estimate that between 20 and 25 million bushels of early crop potatoes should move to market in June.

The nation consumes an average of about 23½ million bushels a month.

The shortage developed because:

(1) Production of late 1951-crop potatoes—those grown in northern states for the nation's supplies for the following winter and spring—was short.

(2) Harvest of this year's early crop—grown in southern states and California — has been later than usual.

Now that the shortage soon may be over, officials are casting an eye ahead for a possible repeat appearance a year from now. Surveys made before the planting season indicated that there would be less land seeded to potatoes this year than last.

Last year's crop of 325 million bushels was 25 per cent smaller than the previous year's harvest. Farmers reduced planting sharply because Congress withdrew price supports.

Texan Too Quick On Draw

DALLAS, Tex., May 24—(AP)—All Texans are supposed to be quick on the draw and Robert Robardey is no exception.

He proved that today.

Robardey spotted a snake in a stump and drew his .22 caliber pistol so fast that he shot himself in the right buttock.

The snake got away.

Connally Plans Fight To Hike Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON, May 24—(AP)—Senator Connally of Texas, Democratic foreign policy leader in the Senate, said today he would conduct an all-out fight for a foreign aid bill bigger than the House voted.

The House, with a coalition of Republicans and a number of Democrats in control, last night passed a $6,162,000,000 measure to strengthen foreign nations against Communism. This was $1,737,000,000 less than the $7,900,000,000 President Truman asked.

Two Senate committees have approved a billion dollar reduction in the Truman program, bringing it down to $6,900,000,000 and Connally will fight to prevent further cuts in the Senate debate opening Monday.

Advocates of deeper cuts declared the solvency of the United States is a main consideration in erecting defenses against Communism, and that the bill contains plenty of water which can be squeezed out.

Big Campaign Brews

The administration was putting on a big campaign to cancel out the House cuts. W. John Kenney, deputy director of the Mutual Security Agency, held a news conference to declare bitterly:

"The House did a wonderful job yesterday—it voted for defense, it voted for economic aid, and it voted for economy and damn it you just can't do all that."

He said the House cuts would cripple the defense of Europe, preventing the North Atlantic treaty countries from reaching their goal of 50 divisions in Europe this year.

Connally, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told newsmen:

"I'm counting on bi-partisan support of our defense program to avoid doing what the House did. We are not playing politics and we are not demagoging."

The $6,900,000,000 bill which the Senate will have before it Monday was cleared through two committees — Foreign Relations and Armed Services. An attempt in the latter committee to cut it by 400 million more was defeated, 7 to 6.

Eleven Republican Senators, led by Senator Welker of Idaho, will seek to chop a full billion from the Senate bill next week. If they fail in that they propose a cut of a half billion.

Against these additional cuts, Connally said he had been promised full support by Republican Senator Smith of New Jersey and Senator George (D-Ga).

Stan Walch Will Go to National Speech Contests

Stan Walch, son of Harry Walch and a senior at Smith-Cotton High School, will go to Boston, Mass., for the convention and national contests of the National Forensic League. He has been selected to represent Missouri in extemporaneous speaking.

Only 220 students from all over the United States may make the trip to the national NFL contests and states must select only the highest ranking speakers to take part. Missouri is sending the debate team from William Chrisman High, Independence, as well as Walch.

This will be the 17th national speech tournament and the 8th National Student Congress conducted by the National Forensic League. It will be held at Boston University.

All contestants may enter three events, the one for which they won the right to attend the national, and two others of their choice. Walch has indicated interest in entering oratory and radio announcing.

Slight Damage Results As Lightning Hits Tower Of Jeff City Building

JEFFERSON CITY, May 24—(AP) — A bolt of lightning just tapped the clock tower of the Cole County courthouse here today.

But, as in the old adage about the barking dog and its bite, the bolt's noise apparently was out of all proportion to the damage done. It looked from the ground like a couple of tiles were knocked loose.

A janitor said he didn't know how bad it was and avowed he had no intention of making a survey while the storm continued.

Even the tower clocks appeared to be going about their business in the usual fashion tonight.

Last year a wayward kite clogged the clocks and they quit until someone cleared away the angle of string.

No one was reported injured by flying debris today but a woman having a cup of coffee across the street declared it shocked her so she couldn't lift her cup.

3 Presidential Aspirants Seek Delegates In Vain

Missouri Democrats Favor No Candidate

JEFFERSON CITY, May 24—(AP)—Stevenson, Harriman and Kefauver supporters are bidding for Missouri's Democratic presidential delegates at the state convention here Monday.

But Democratic leaders insist Missouri's delegation will go uninstructed to the Chicago nominating convention in July.

A "favorite son" resolution urging President Truman to run again is in the works. But the plain fact is the state party leaders do not know the man the President will support.

Mr. Truman will be a Missouri delegate-at-large. He has indicated he will not attend the Chicago convention until after the party nominates its candidate for president. He has asked the state convention to elect an alternate to cast his vote the right way.

So far, none of the home state Democrats are certain what that means.

Technically, the state convention's job is simply to choose:

Forty-two delegates to cast Missouri's 34 votes at the national convention. Twenty-six will be district delegates with a full vote each; 16 will be delegates at large casting a half vote each. President Truman's alternate thus will have one-half vote.

Half Vote May Be a Key

It could turn out to be the most important one-half vote at the Chicago convention.

Also at stake in the convention Monday are the job of national committeeman and committeewoman. Plus selection of the 13 presidential electors who get a free ride to Washington next winter if the Democrats elect their presidential candidate.

Last minute developments pumped new interest into the convention.

Supporters of Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn), the front running presidential candidate in Democratic delegate strength, had a hotel headquarters reserved—a move that surprised the convention arrangers. Kefauver was not expected to attend personally.

Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Ja., (D-NY), son of the late president, also had a reservation. He is seeking delegates for New York's favorite son candidate, W. Averell Harriman.

Mayor Joseph M. Darst of St. Louis heads a state group of Harriman supporters who plan to attend the convention, too.

Until the last few days, there was little talk among the state's party leaders for anyone except Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois. He has said he is not running for anything but governor of Illinois. His supporters remain hopeful, however.

Nangle Still Has Hopes

John J. Nangle of St. Louis, national committeeman from Missouri, has expressed the hope Missouri's delegation could go to Chicago with its hands free, so it could switch Missouri's 34 votes to Stevenson if the Illinois governor's name is presented.

As to the national committeeman's job, Nangle has said he would like another four-year term but would not make a fight for it if that would mean intra-party strife.

Also mentioned as possibilities are Richard R. Nacy of Jefferson City and Sidney Salmon of St. Louis. Nacy, former state chairman, was the late Bob Hannegan's assistant when Hannegan was national chairman. Salomon formerly was national committee treasurer.

The Missouri National Committeewoman is Mrs. J. V. Billings of Kennett, who recently remarried her former husband, Circuit Judge Billings. She is not a candidate for reelection.

Mentioned as possible successors are Mrs. Julia Woodson Edman of St. Joseph, secretary of the state committee; Mrs. Marie F. Jones of Blackburn, a member of the state committee; Mrs. Willie Mae Roberts of Holliday, a state committee member; Mrs. Margaret Butler of St. Louis, president of the State Federation of Democratic Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Opal Rhodes of Bethany, a state committee member from Mrs. Edman's district.

Henning To Be A Delegate

Besides the President, Sen. Thomas C. Hennings, Ja., of St. Louis and Gov. Forrest Smith are expected to be chosen delegates at large. That is customary. Hennings also will be the convention's temporary chairman.

The permanent chairman and keynoter is William G. Boatright, Kansas City lawyer and a member of the James M. Pendergast faction there.

Remember Big Scenes From Former Films?

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—How far back does your movie memory go?

About the earliest movie I can remember attending was "The Cat and the Canary." That was a Laura LaPlante thriller circa 1927. I can still remember being scared by the hand reaching out of the bookcase and clutching for Laura. Wowee!

All of the memorable movies had scenes which stand out in the minds of film goers. I tried to list some of the scenes which remain the most famous of all time. Some are old and some are new, but all had that certain magic that made them live longer than other strips of celluloid.

1. The hitchhiking scene in "It Happened One Night." The picture is now 18 years old, but the majority of mature Americans can still recall how Clark Gable failed at hitching a ride. But when Claudette Colbert lifted her skirt beside the road, a car screeched to a stop and picked them up.

2. James Cagney pushing a grapefruit in Mae Clarke's face in "Public Enemy." That scene is still the epitome o ffilm toughness.

3. John Gilbert's farewell to Renee Adoree in "The Big Parade."

4. The train-station hospital in "Gone With The Wind." That was a picture with many memorable scenes. But the one I remember is the tremendous shot of the Southern wounded in the train station.

5. Dana Andrews walking among the deserted airplanes in "The Best Years of Our Lives." The scene recalled vividly the past glories of a recent war.

6. The battle scene of "Birth of a Nation." Up to that time and for years thereafter, no one had portrayed warfare as vividly on the screen as did D.W. Griffith.

7. Charlie Chaplin dining on his shoe in "The Gold Rush." Chaplin's ability to combine comedy and pathos is legendary. Never was this facility more evident than in that wonderful scene.

8. The zepplin crash in "Hell's Angels." It was simply gigantic, that's all.

9. The hotel scene between Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall in "To Have and Have Not." For pure sex, nothing in recent years can compare with the scene in which she murmured, "If you want anything, just whistle."

10. The earthquake in "San Francisco." Of all the movie disasters, none remains as memorable as the havoc created for this film.

Those are my selections. What about yours?

Want Both Parties To Give Views On Vatican Envoy

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Baptist Convention wants presidential nominees of both major parties to declare early in their campaigns their views on possible appointment of a U.S. envoy to the Vatican.

Delegates at the religious group's annual convention adopted a reso- on yesterday reaffirming opposition to any kind of formal diplomatic relations with the headquarters of the Roman Catholic church.

The resolution added that presidential candidates should "be requested, as soon as nominated, to express their policies on this issue."

"The President of the United States," the resolution said, "has not withdrawn his announced intention of making another nomination of an ambassador.

"In this election year the issue of an ambassador to the Vatican is likely to be urged upon the candidates selected by the major political parties."

Another approved resolution stated that cases of suspected subversive action or disloyalty "should be handled according to the principles of due process of law, with the right of counsel and hearing before an unprejudiced body." It added:

"It is especially necessary in times of national emergency and unrest for lawmakers and law enforcers, as well as citizens, to refrain from tainting the name of a fellow citizen by assuming him guilty of disloyalty because of association, hearsay, rumor, malignant accusation or any other process except those in which the tenets of objective legal evidence apply."

Other adopted resolutions opposed universal military training pledged continued support of the purposes of the United Nations, and urged "our churches to move more rapidly toward the establishment of complete non-segregation among the church and institutions within our fellowship."

French Go to School to Find How to Fight Union Commies

COMPIEGNE, France (AP) — French workers are going to school here to learn how to fight the Communists, who dominate the labor unions in France.

Miners, transport and metal industry workers already have been given two weeks of intensive courses on how to buck the Reds and at the same time lose no ground in their struggle for better wages.

The program is financed by the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions. The courses are given here in the Compiegne Forest in a chateau loaned by the Swedish labor movement.

Students are picked militants from Force ouvriere (worker's force), the biggest anti-Communist union in France. A second such college will be opened in September in Italy.

Victor G. Reuther, European representative of the American CIO, said one of the aims is "to develop collective bargaining on international lines.

"It's no longer a question of May Day or Labor Day speeches but of preparing practical programs. We have got to even out the relative conditions of labor on both sides of the Atlantic."

The workers are taught the tasks and responsibilities of a militant unionist, how to conduct negotiations with employers, how to handle meetings, how to write reports and propaganda pamphlets, how to deal with workers who try to cross a picket line and so on.

Reuther claims French employers are playing fast and loose with the workers' freedom by negotiating with the Communist unions.

"They do it because it costs them less to deal with the CGT (the powerful Communist - dominated General Labor Confederation), which is concerned more with politics than anything else," he said. "The free trade unions would cost them more, being more concerned with a decent wage standard than the latest political wind which blows from the East."

The CGT which claims a membership of three million, has been losing some of its strength, but most of the workers who left it have preferred to stay without affiliation.

It is hoped in the end to put about 900 students a year through the college at an overall estimated cost of about $112,000. The ICFTU provides each student with free board and lodging, travel expenses, full wages, social security allowances and 1,000 francs (nearly three dollars) in pocket money.

During their two-week stay at La Breviere, the 45 picked workers sleep in cheerful, chintz-curtained bedrooms (each has a different color scheme), eat copious free meals in the chateau's dining hall, attend lectures, and ramble in the surrounding forest. They get a chance to visit Paris, 65 miles away.

Madame Francoise Daverdin, who works in a big precision instrument factory in Paris and was the only woman attending the metal workers' course, said: "It's just wonderful here, m'sieur, but our heads are fairly bursting. There's so much to learn and we are not accustomed to such intellectual work."

Soviet Paper Says Ships Left Drowning Sailors From Hobson

MOSCOW, (AP)—The Soviet Navy newspaper Red Fleet said today U.S. naval ships hurriedly left the scene of the April 26 collision of the aircraft carrier Wasp and destroyer - minesweeper Hobson without waiting to save drowning sailors.

In its version of what happened in the mid-Atlantic disaster, which took 176 lives, the paper gave the impression poor seamanship and carelessness caused the accident. U.S. Navy explanations were "ridiculous," Red Fleet said.

Rescue operations were hampered by darkness and rough seas, but officers in charge said they made every possible effort to save the crew of the Hobson after she was rammed and sunk. Sixty-one crewmen were picked up.

Official investigations of the causes of the collision have not been completed.

Mexico Plans City On Border to Bring Back Her Migrants

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexico will attempt to entice back some of her migrant population with a brand new city on the U.S.-Mexican border opposite Arizona.

The city, to be named for President Miguel Aleman, will be located in a heavily wooded area, five miles north of Sonoita, Sonora State, and 161 miles south of Phoenix by highway.

Mexico's government finance corporation announced it has earmarked an initial investment of 10 billion pesos ($1,150,000) for the project.

It is estimated the new city will have a population of 18,000 within five years, drawn largely from poor Mexicans now living on the U. S. side of the border. The government plans to offer irrigated land and housing on easy terms.

Eighteen Models of Other Makes of Cars Cost More!

Official price lists show that there are eighteen different models of American motor cars, produced by five separate automotive manufacturers, which actually cost more than the lowest-priced Cadillac—when similarly equipped.

If you find this difficult to believe—then you're in good company!

For the record also shows that, during the past few years, literally hundreds of thousands of motorists have taken title to these costlier models. And there can be little doubt that many of them did so simply because they failed to realize how relatively modest the cost of a Cadillac can be.

They simply assumed that exclusive in quality means exclusive in price! And it is doubtful if a single misunderstanding ever cost so many motorists so much!

It cost them, first of all, the satisfaction of owning a Cadillac! For there is no substitute for the sense of pride and well-being that comes from owning a motor car that is universally recognized as the "Standard of the World."

It cost them, too, the pleasure of driving a Cadillac! And this, beyond any question, is the greatest penalty of all! For in missing out on the many thrills to be found behind its wheel—they're missing out on motoring's finest rewards.

And, of course, it also cost them Cadillac's many long-range economies—its almost unbelievable gasoline mileage, its unsurpassed dependability, and its legendary long life.

• • • •

We know that you wouldn't want to make such a costly mistake in the selection of your next car. But you'd better be careful—because there are eighteen different ways to make it!

So when the time comes—investigate! And if you pay the price of a Cadillac—be sure that you get one!

Auto Makers Watch Junk Piles Grow

By DAVID J. WILKIE
AP Automotive Editor

DETROIT (AP) — Automobile industry executives are watching with more than ordinary interest the volume of older cars moving to the scrap heap. It represents the industry's replacement market.

Last year nearly 3,712,000 passenger cars were taken off the road and sent to the junk pile. Many industry authorities believe this year will see fully as many units scrapped.

If the figure seems high it should be remembered there currently are approximately 42 million passenger cars in use in the United States and that about one-third of them were built before World War II. It isn't much of an exaggeration to say that most of the pre-war cars are overdue at the scrap heap.

The industry's optimists use the scrappage figures to support their assertions that there is an annual market for five million new passenger cars. The scrapping can continue indefinitely at last year's rate, they add.

Even at the accelerated junking rate it will take many years to scrap all the pre-war cars still being used. And before that time comes millions of the cars built since World War II will be worn out.

Despite the industry's efforts to get so-called "junkers" off the road many pre-war cars still are being sold. However, they bring little or nothing in trade-in transactions.

New car dealers with more cars than customers sometimes will offer an allowance on a pre-war car only to make a sale. More often then not the traded-in car goes direct to the scrap heap.

Greater mileage than ever out of tires, engines and brakes is being claimed by most car manufacturers for their most recent models. It still is true, however, that after a certain point of use maintenance costs begin to pile up.

It used to be said that after you have driven your car 35,000 miles you could begin to anticipate outlay for brake lining, clutch facing, piston ring and battery replacement and such things. Perhaps engineering refinement assures more trouble-free mileage than that in today's cars, but 35,000 miles still is a lot of mileage on the speedometer, especially when you want to sell your car.

So, if you can afford to take the depreciation involved, it generally is well to trade in your car before it begins to demand parts replacements, and costly labor.

Auburn Lost Chief Industry, Fought Back to Prosperity

By HAL BOYLE

AUBURN, N. Y. (AP)—Some American communities, on losing their chief industry, dwindle until they become little more than ghost towns.

Auburn is an example of a town that faced this problem and fought back.

As a result of inspired action by its citizenry, this central new York farm trading and manufacturing center of 36,500 today faces a more prosperous future than ever.

In more than 150 years Auburn had grown from a pioneer village to a well-balanced, pleasant community with some 26 varied industries. It also is the site of a state prison, where in the 1820s the first cell blocks were built that later became the pattern of American prison architecture.

Disaster threatened the town when its leading industry, the International Harvester Company, decided to pull out. That meant the loss of 1,500 jobs and a five million dollar annual blow.

The firm gave 18-months notice of its intentions. Every civic attempt to save it proved futile. In 1950 International Harvester shut down its plant here, and as a gesture of good will sold its buildings for $1 to a group of citizens who organized an industrial development committee.

Leaders raised $50,000 to finance the committee's effort to lure new industries. At first some businessmen held back, saying: "Why should we help get new firms here that will compete with us for the labor supply?" But they soon decided they didn't want to be part of a dying community. They pitched in, too.

"There wasn't anybody to sell our community except ourselves," recalled Frank S. Smith, utilities executive who headed the committee. 'We couldn't afford just to sit back and wait for the right guy to come along.

"And one of our handicaps was that we were known as 'that place where the prison is.'"

Smith will never forget his first inspection tour of the vacated $1 plant facilities, which had become run down.

"I know of nothing more forlorn than an abandoned plant," he said. "In the damp and cold of 800,000 square feet of rambling buildings, in the half dark of the silent old structures, sooted with the smoke of the forge and foundry, worn with the transport of goods across the floors, crumbling here and there with the ravages of time and use, we plodded our way.

"I wondered whether we had made an ill-advised bargain at one dollar. I wondered whether the frost-heaved floors, the leaking pipes, the dripping roof, the wind-blasted corners and crannies could be given again to industry in return for jobs and a payroll."

But the committee swung into action. Sparkplugged by Smith and Karl A. Adams, head of the Chamber of Commerce, it contacted scores of outside manufacturers, hundreds of industrial realty dealers.

Resolutely the committee avoided the temptation of selling space to fly-by-night small concerns that paid small wages; stubbornly fought to get the kind of firms it wanted.

The expansion drive has paid. General Electric has built a new plant here. A laundry machinery firm took over much of the old, abandoned plant and spent millions to renovate it. Three other industries have located here. Railroad freight traffic is higher than ever.

In a recent victory dinner Smith announced that the new firms were hiring 1,800 workers, more than replacing the lost 1,500 jobs, and that they had a potential of 3,000 jobs and an annual payroll of 12 to 14 million dollars.

When the development committee attempted to return $10,000 remaining from the $50,000 expansion fund, most contributors said, "keep the money and continue your work."

Smith gave this summary of Auburn's successful fight against economic disaster:

"It took a major jolt to rouse our community out of a false sense of security. It brought the people together as nothing else could."

French Hold Out of Pact For Rights

PARIS (AP)—The French Cabinet indicated today it would approve the signing of the European army treaty, only if certain conditions are met.

The decision was made after a session which ran until early Saturday morning.

The exact conditions were not disclosed, but informants said they probably will include:

1. Insistence that the United States and Britain pledge their aid in keeping a rearmed Germany from pulling out of the European army to run an independent course.

2. Insistence that France's special problems outside Europe — such as her costly fight in Indochina—be given immediate consideration by Britain and the United States.

The treaty scheduled to be signed here Tuesday, would put some 400,000 Germans into a million-man, one-uniform European army.

A Cabinet spokesman said the treaty would not be presented to Parliament for ratification unless the proposed conditions are fulfilled. He said it was not certain, however, that the conditions would delay the signing of the pact. Signing alone does not bind any country involved, but ratification by its Parliament does.

Within the treaty itself is a clause prohibiting any member from quitting it without consent of the rest. The French want British and American assurance they will see that it is enforced.

There has been considerable criticism of French Foreign Minister Schuman within Cabinet ranks. Members have objected that he has not given them full indication of what was covered in negotiations at Bonn on new contractural relations with Germany.

The Cabinet's conditions have been sent to Schuman who went to Bonn last night for the signing of the German peace contract.

Yanks Invade Ireland With Aid of Irish

DUBLIN (AP)—Americans are invading Ireland this year with the enthusiastic aid of the Irish government.

Armed with dollars and cameras, they pour into Dublin from almost every ship and plane and fan out into the green lake-studded country, often in search of the hamlet from which their ancestors emigrated to the United States.

They find good food, a pleasant, smiling people who take life at a slow, easy pace and prices relatively low by American standards. A room and breakfast in one of the best Dublin hotels, for instance, costs about $3.50.

They find smart shopping centers as good as almost any in Europe, unexcelled hunting and fishing and some of the finest stock farms in the world. Most of all, they find tranquillity.

They won't find the shillelaghs which, according to belief, every true-blooded Irishman always carries as his principal and necessary weapon, nor see any evidence of the pixie-like leprechauns which are supposed to be grinning behind every tree and dancing in every bog.

The Irish Tourist Bureau expects between 20,000 and 30,000 Americans will return ot the "mither" county this year and estimates each will spend an average of $100 during the four days they are here.

"Last year 14,174 American tourists visited Ireland," says T.A. O'Gorman of the Tourist Bureau. "That's 3,500 fewer than the year before, but don't forget that 1950 was Holy Year and more Americans were in Europe then."

What's the principal attraction Ireland holds for the visitors?

"It's variety," says O'Gorman. "We're a relatively little island, almost exactly the size of Maine, set on the Western fringe of Europe between the old world and the new. There's a lot of the ancient and modern set down almost side by side. Pre-Christian forts, early Christian churches and oratories, medieval castles and abbeys stand almost side by side with modern factories and hydroelectric plants.

"Our long, indented coastline, ringed by mountains, presents some of the finest scenery in the world.

"Where else in the world," he went on, "can anyone see anything like the lakes of Killarney, the rocky grandeur of Connemara, the coastline of Donegal or the pastoral beauty of the Boyne Valley?"

Graduates and Brides Warned of SS Cards

June graduates and June brides, take special notice.

"Be sure you have a social security account card, protect your card and show it to your employer," advises Scott Webber, manager of the Sedalia social security office.

If you do not already have a social security account-number card, and if you expect to work during the summer in a job that comes under social security, you should apply for your card at once to your nearest social security office. If there is no office near you, you can get an application blank and instructions at your local post office. By doing this, you will have your card ready to show to any prospective employer. You won't lose time starting on your new job, nor be embarrassed.

If you have a card, but lost it, apply for a duplicate at once. When a girl marries, she will need to change her name on her social security record, retaining her original number.

Health Tests Available for Rural Students of County

State's 9-Point Health Inspection Offered by Clubs

The home economics extension clubs of Pettis County have planned a health program which will make it possible for all county school children to have the same health inspection as that given to the children in the Sedalia schools, which is the nine-point health inspection.

This is the health standard offered by the Missouri State Board of Health and is considered a reasonable goal within the reach of practically every child in Missouri whose parents want him to attain it.

The inspections will be made by Mrs. Bettye Murrell, Sedalia school nurse, assisted by members of the home economics extension clubs. The children will be weighed and a brief history of previous diseases will be taken. (The children should be "briefed" by their parents on these diseases.) They should also be able to tell if they have been vaccinated (show the scar) and if they have had diphtheria immunization and if they have a certified copy of their birth registration.

The vision will be tested by the Keystone telebinocular test, the hearing will be tested by the audiometer and the posture, teeth and throat will be checked. Each child will be given a pamphlet, "Is Your Child a Nine Pointer?", with the points checked that the parent should consult their doctor or dentist about.

The schedule of dates and chairmen in charge is as follows:

Green Ridge, June 9, 10, 11, Mrs. Wesley Harding, Green Ridge.

Striped College, June 12, 13, Mrs. T. Dabner, route 2, Sedalia.

Hughesville, June 16, 17, 18, Mrs. J. L. Conaway, Hughesville.

Dresden, June 19, 20, Mrs. A. B. Cook, Dresden.

La Monte, June 23, 24, 25, 26, Mrs. George Fichter, route 2, Hughesville.

Cartwright, June 27, Mrs. Clay Leftwich, Hughesville.

Smithton, June 30, July 1, 2, 3, Mrs. John Rush, Beaman.

High Point, July 7, 8, Mrs. Kenneth Anderson, route 4, Sedalia.

Schools near the above places are invited to bring their children there. The extension club president or the president of the PTA should contact the chairman to make arrangements.

Any other clubs or PTA groups that wish to have Mrs. Murrel come to their school or other community center for one or more days should contact her soon to set a date. No appointments will be made later than July 18.

Riding Trails Sought

LA CANADA, Calif. (AP)—Many Southern California horsemen, led by Harold Beere, an insurance executive, are working to establish a riding and hiking trail from Oregon to Mexico.

They admit the long trail is still in the dream stage but are actively campaigning for 450 miles of bridle paths in Los Angeles County.

Beere appeared before the California Riding and Hiking Trails advisory committee recently to seek appropriations to build watering troughs on state bridle paths.

ESSEN, Germany (AP)—The new Allied-German "peace contract" unclamps all but two security controls over West Germany's gigantic industrial machine.

And that means that the big Ruhr steel mills again can produce such items as artillery weapons, shells, tanks and similar military items.

Security controls, however, stipulate that arms production must be under authority of the European army. The other bans production of atomic weapons, guided missiles, bacteriological weapons and poison gas.

When the United States Military Academy first opened in 1802 it had 12 cadets.

'Scientist X' Faces Charges On June 2nd

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joseph W. Weinberg, accused as "Scentist X" who slipped atomic secrets to an alleged Red spy, must answer charges June 2 that he lied when he swore he had never been a Communist party member.

The 35-year-old physicist was arrested in Minneapolis late Friday after a federal grand jury in Washington returned a three-count perjury indictment against him.

Weinberg expressed surprise at the indictment but refused to discuss the charges. He was released on $10,000 bond after appearing before U.S. Commissioner C. O. Lundquist at Minneapolis.

Lundquist ordered him to return Tuesday when bond will be set for his appearance June 2 in Washington's U.S. District Court.

Conviction would carry a maximum penalty of 10 years' imprisonment on each of the three counts for a total of 30 years.

The House Un-American Activities Committee said in September, 1949 that Weinberg was the figure mentioned frequently in its reports as "Scientist X."

The committee accused Weinberg, then an assistant professor of physics at the University of a. of givin g coamtiisotesWt Minnesota, of giving atomic secrets to Steve Nelson. It described Nelson as a Communist espionage agent.

Nelson is now a Red party boss in Western Pennsylvania. During World War II he was a party organizer in Alameda County, Calif., where Weinberg was working in the University of California's Radiation Laboratory for atomic research.

A 1948 committee report charged Nelson got information on the atomic bomb work from "Scientist X" in 1943 and later passed an envelope or package to Soviet Vice Consul Peter Ivanov in San Francisco.

When Weinberg was named as "Scientist X" he swore he had always been loyal to the United States and said it was a case of mistaken identity. He said he had no access to atomic secrets in 1943.

Weinberg was cited for contempt last year after refusing to answer certain questions before the Washington grand jury. He was acquitted on his plea that his answers might tend to incriminate him.

The University of Minnesota suspended Weinberg May 16, 1951, on charges he refused to co-operate with the grand jury. A month later he was relieved of all duties but kept on the payroll, under job tenure rules, until next June 15.

The indictment says Weinberg perjured himself when he testified under oath (1) he had not been a member of the Communist party, (2) he attended only one Red party meeting and (3) he did not remember having known Steve Nelson prior to April 26, 1949.

Presbyterian Church Changes Rules on Remarrying Divorced

By GEORGE CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP)—The Presbyterian church in the U.S.A. has thrown out a part of its church law saying its ministers may remarry a divorced person only after a year has elapsed since the divorce.

The change, given final approval by the 2½ million member church's top governing body, also strikes out a phrase specifying that ministers "may remarry the innocent party" to a divorce.

No restrictions concerning remarriage of the "guilty" or "innocent" party is contained in the newly substituted section of the church's "Directory of Worship."

It specifies only that the minister before remarrying a divorced person, "shall ascertain whether there is penitence for past sin and failure, and intention to enter, with the help of God, and through his church" into a lasting marriage of "love, honor, forbearance and loyalty.

The action culminated several years of debate over the church's marriage and divorce policies.

Endorsed during the past year by a majority of the church's 259 local Presbyteries, the revision got final approval yesterday by the church's 164th annual General Assembly.

More than 2,000 Presbyterian leaders are here for the week-long meeting, which also adopted a extensive program of "co-operative activity" with the two other major Presbyterian branches.

These are the 700,000-member Presbyterian Church in the U.S., and the 300,000-member United Presbyterian Church.

The action, cited as a forerunner to a "plan of union," calls for liaison between the three churches in fields of evangelism, stewardship, pulpit exchange, the chaplaincy and in locating new churches.

A common hymnbook for the three branches is being prepared.

Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd, president of Maryville College, Maryville, Tenn., and head of an inter-church relations commission, said the plan is "more far-reaching than anything we have had before."

He said a plan for merger of the three bodies is expected to be ready for submission to general assemblies of the three bodies next year.

While adopting a new directive liberalizing the church's remarriage policies, the assembly dropped another proposal, which would have set up councils in each local Presbytery to pass on requested remarriages.

This proposal, which also would have revived the requirement that a year elapse before a divorced person could be remarried in the church, was set aside after it was reported 121 Presbyteries opposed it.

Only 90 voted for it. A majority of 130 is required before the proposal could go before the assembly for final action.

A total of 158 Presbyteries had endorsed the new change eliminating the one-year divorce requirement, while 58 had opposed it.

The assembly also heard Henry L. McCorkle of Philadelphia declare that Protestants in Columbia, South America, are in "the midst of terrible trouble" because of Catholic persecution.

Reporting on a tour of Columbia, he said at least 2,000 cases of individual persecutions of Protestants by Catholics had been reported since 1949, and 450 cases had been substantiated in the past six months.

McCorkle, news editor of the church's official magazine, Presbyterian Life, said the assaults did not stem from political motives.

"When a priest leads a mob to stone a Protestant church and when a priest forcibly takes over a Protestant service . . . to blaspheme Protestantism . . . it is not politics," he said.

Dramatically, he held up a partially burned Bible and a piece of broken glass, and said the articles came from a church in Barbosa he visited three days after a priest-led mob stormed it and broke out 147 windows.

The Douglas fir is named for the Scottish botanist, David Douglas, who visited the Pacific coast in the 19th century.

Giant Cactus Falls on Child; Death Is Instant

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A giant cactus, 22 feet high and weighing more than a ton, fell on a five-year-old child last night, apparently killing her instantly.

The huge plant thundered down on Cindy Lauther, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garnat Lauther, while she was playing near her home in the Tucson mountains, sheriff's deputies said.

Exactly what caused the cactus to fall has not been determined.

The accident was reconstructed by sheriff's deputies as follows:

Cindy, her brother, Tommy, 9, and two friends were playing near the thorny, statuesque desert growth.

Suddenly it sagged and then came hurtling down among the children.

Tommy ran to his home a quarter of a mile away to get assistance, but frantic efforts of the parents to summon neighbors were blocked by a woman who refused to give up the telephone party line.

The father and other children were unable to budge the cactus or remove Cindy's body. The plant lay across her waist.

Finally help arrived and six men with timbers were required to lift the plant. The child was rushed to the hospital but pronounced dead on arrival.

Stakes Off Orchard With Scientific Name

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Pennsylvania farmer whose orchard of Chinese chestnut trees was being damaged by careless hunters appealed for help some time ago to the Agriculture Department.

"What can I do," he wrote, "to protect my orchard?

He was advised to post signs reading as follows:

"No trespassing; warning, the dangerous castanea mollissima linneacus abounds in this orchard. Beware."

The farmer has reported back, the Agriculture Department said, that he followed these instructions and that hunters are giving the orchard a wide berth.

"Castanea mollissima linneaeus" is the scientific name for the Chinese chestnut tree.

Hopes Mound For Quick End Of Fuel Lack

DENVER, May 24—(AP)—A further step-up in the flow of the nation's gasoline and oil, interrupted by a strike, was promised today as additional refinery workers accepted wage-raising agreements.

Developments on the 25th day since the nation-wide strike was called April 30 by a coaltion of 22 CIO, AFL and Independent Unions included:

The walkout of 7,000 workers at the huge Whiting, Ind., refinery of Standard Oil ended with an agreement last night, based on a 15-cent hourly wage hike recommended 10 days ago by the Wage Stabilization Board. The pre-strike scale in the industry averaged $2-$2.10 per hour for the day work.

Union employes as the Texas Co.'s Port Arthur, Tex., plant also voted an end of their strike, leaving only five major refineries in Texas still shut down.

CIO workers in 30 locals of Oklahoma and Kansas cast votes on whether to accept a 15-cent increase offered by the Cities Service Oil Co.

A union source at Denver estimated that at least 42,000 men have returned to work after close to 90,000 walked out more than three weeks ago.

The Petroleum Administration for Defense announced that, effective Tuesday, commercial users of aviation gasoline during each of the three weeks beginning Monday may buy up to 19½ per cent of the amounts they bought during March. At present, the limit is 65 per cent of March purchases.

PAD yesterday lifted all restrictions on the use of automobile gasoline, kerosene and fuel oil, but said some restrictions on aviation gasoline will remain until mid-June.

The strike led to curtailments of flights by commercial air lines and the U. S. Air Force but caused only temporary inconvenience to motorists in a few areas.

President's Memorial Day Statement Asks World Prayers for Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman's Memorial Day statement asked the nation for a universal prayer for a permanent peace he said is nearer reality now than on last year's day of remembrance.

His statement, issued yesterday, laid special stress on the dead of Korea, who, he said, had proved aggression cannot pay.

The President said the men in Korea laid down their lives for lasting peace, and "we must not let these men down now that the goal is so nearly attainable."

Tear Gas Ends A Prison Riot In Idaho Prison

BOISE, Idaho, May 24 — (AP) — Three-hundred prisoners rioted at Idaho state penitentiary for more than four hours today before a tear gas barrage broke the spirit of their rebellion.

After the riot was quelled, Clapp said the grievance committee would be abolished. He said individuals responsible for the riot "will be punished and they'll all go into solitary confinement."

While the prisoners were milling in the prison yard, one of them, identifying himself as Roy Edward Jones, told newsmen that "We'll probably get eight months to a year in the hole." Jones said he was serving a 15-year term for burglary.

Reporters, standing on the high prison wall to watch the proceedings, heard the man say: "The warden doesn't have the guts to take you reporters through the prison and show you the hole. It smells like a billy goat pen."

Two weeks ago Clapp invited reporters to interview a prisoner, Dewey Edwards, who has spent several months in solitary confinement. He said "the hole" was a cell four by eight feet in size with only a small slit in the door to admit light. Edwards said prisoners slept on the floor and a hole in the floor, flushed with water twice daily, was the only plumbing facility.

Canada Drought Hikes Price Of Wheat In US

CHICAGO, May 24—(AP)—Continued lack of moisture in the spring wheat belt of the northwest, as well as in Canada, brought buying into the bread cereal on the Board of Trade today.

Soybeans moved ahead with wheat. Some buying entered rye on news West Germany had bought about one milion bushels overnight, although this purchase largely had been discounted earlier in the week. Corn and oats were just about steady.

Wheat closed ¾ to 1⅛ cent higher, corn unchanged to ¼ cent higher, oats unchanged to ¼ cent higher, rye ¼ to 2 cents higher, and soybeans 1½ to 2¾ cents higher.

The action today left most grains little changed for the week with soybeans providing an exception. Beans closed 5¼ to 7½ cent higher. Wheat finished ¼ to ¾ cent lower, corn 1¼ cents lower to ⅜ cent higher, oats ¼ cent lower to ½ cent higher, and rye ¾ to 3 cents higher.

Chief feature of the week's trade was the closing out of May contracts on Wednesday. May soybeans ended on a 10-cent gain, the limit permitted in a single session, and at the next best price in the entire life of that contract. It spurted a good 5 cents in the last couple of minutes.

He expects to be discharged this fall.

Boatner Fires Deputy Chief Of Koje Camp

KOJE ISLAND, Sunday, May 25 —(AP)—Brig. Gen. Haydon Boatner fired his deputy commander of unruly Koje prison camp today and shook up the remaining staff. Then he welded a tough international security force from five nations and gave fair warning to die-hard Reds to obey the regulations—or face the consequences.

The deputy commander, Col. Maurice J. Fitzgerald, has been replaced and assigned to duty as an advisor to the Korean National Police.

Picked empire troops from Britain's crack Shropshire Light Infantry and Canada's Royal Canadian Regiment, were due later today from Pusan to bolster American, Dutch and South Korean units already garrisoning this prison island.

Move Partly Political

Addition of two companies of the Commonwealth Division—approximately 500 men—obviously was a political as well as a military gesture.

As part of the increased awareness of the importance of Koje in the stalled armistice talks in Panmunjom and the impact which world opinion has on them, the U. N. Command appeared determined to make the Koje security force as international a group as possible. Until recently American and South Korean troops bore the full brunt of maintaining order.

Since Boatner took over his job 12 days ago—a job he labeled "one of the toughest in the army"—he has moved cautiously in dealing directly with prisoners but quickly in other respects.

Two days ago leathery Boatner met the top prisoner spokesman, North Korean Col. Lee Hak Koo, and told him he would continue to meet with him only of Red flags were pulled down inside the prisoner-controled compounds.

Two Flags Go-Down

Saturday the flag over notorious compound 76 and 10 other compounds were down, but still flying in six others.

Boatner has sent the Red prisoners three information bulletins telling them what he expects. The bulletins are distributed in Chinese and North Korean leaflets and are also broadcast over the public address system.

"I want them to know what they are supposed to do," Boatner said, "and I want them to know from me."

Big Indochina Battle Wages For Rice Crop

By LARRY ALLEN

HANOI, Indochina (AP)—There's a big battle on in Northern Indochina—for rice.

Throughout the vast, sprawling Red River delta, millions of Vietnamese are busy harvesting what looks like a bumper crop.

To the north and northwest of Hanoi, the Communist-led vietminh—who have been warring against French Union forces for six years—are taking time out from battle to garner their rice harvest. But the crops in the mountainous regions of North Viet Nam held by the forces of Ho Chi Minh never are as bountiful as those in the rich Red River delta.

So, on the war side, the Vietminh for the moment seem to be concentrating upon making sporadic raids upon villages in the delta, seizing garnered crops of rice.

In Indochina, rice and salt are the two most powerful mediums of exchange. A Vietminh adherent will sell anything for salt. For all the people in Indochina rice is the staff of life.

The rush to garner rice starts in mid-May and usually most crops are collected by June 15.

There between seven and eight million Vietnamese living in the 100,000 or more villages in the Red River delta. Each family has its own rice-field.

So, for the moment, there seems to be a tapering-off of all military action in Northern Indochina—for to win military battles, both the French and Vietnamese and the Vietminh know they must first win the battle to gather in all the rice.

Rice and salt are two items uppermost in the minds of the Vietnamese and the Vietminh. It is not an uncommon trade in North Tonkin for a Vietminh to offer 600 grams of fresh chicken for 300 grams of salt.

US Gives Tip Commies May Plan Offensive

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has tipped off its 16 Allies might be planning a new offensive.

The State Department disclosed late Friday that it circulated a warning 10 days ago against the possibility of "renewed Communist aggression." The on guard message went to all United Nations members helping in the Korean fight.

The department said "there must be no faltering" should the Communists once again try to engulf U. N. forces on the peninsula.

The declaration was in effect a correction of a statement by Secretary of State Dean Acheson to a news conference Wednesday. Acheson is now in Europe, helping negotiate agreements for a German peace contract and for German participation in the defense of Europe against Communis

The secretary told his news conference, before leaving, that no warning had been sent to the Philippines about new Communist aggression in the Far East. President Elpidio Quirino of the Philippines had told reporters his government received such a warning, and it was concerned about it.

To set the record straight, the State Department said:

"It has now been learned that President Quirino as referring to a statement which had been made recently in Washington (May 13) to the representatives of all nations participating in the U. N. action in Korea about the Communist buildup in North Korea and their capabilities for renewed offensive action."

Quirino, the statement said, was "quite right....in realizing the serious potentials of this buildup."

"All freedom loving nations must be constantly alert to possible renewed Communist aggression," the State Department said. This echoed a declaration by Quirino.

Alias Basil Willing

By Helen McCloy

Copyright 1951 by Helen McCloy Dresser, printed through permission of the publisher, Lantern House, Inc. Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Jack Duggan, a private detective who had been posing as Basil Willing, is murdered and a woman who employed him, aged and blind Katherine Shaw, dies under mysterious circumstances. Both deaths occurred in connection with a dinner party at the home of Dr. Zimmer, who is a psychiatrist as is Basil Willing. In spite of the deaths, Dr. Zimmer resumes his gatherings which are held to study some of his patients. Basil asks Miss Shaw's secretary Charlotte Dean to attend and report on what occurs. Late that night, Perdita Lawrence, who attended the dinner with her father Stephen Lawrence, calls Basil, telling him that her father is dying. Basil has managed to bring Lawrence out of codeine poisoning. Lawrence revives only after Basil says he must do so for his daughter's sake.

* * *

XXIV

AFTER an hour Basil Willing came out of the room and shut the door. Perdita sat on the top step of the stair, eyes questioning. He nodded and heard her soft exhalation of relief. They went down in silence.

She brought coffee from the kitchenette to the table before the fireplace. "You saved his life."

"No. You saved his life."

She looked at him stonily "You're trying to make me feel comfortable. But I shall never feel comfortable again."

"Why not?"

She turned away. "I can't help feeling it was my fault somehow."

"Tell me what happened before you called. You both dined at Dr. Zimmer's?"

Her startled eyes searched his face. "How did you know?"

"Miss Dean told me the Friday dinners were being resumed. Were they all there — the Yorkes, the Cannings, Brinsley Shaw and Miss Dean, Dr. Zimmer and Mrs. Mann?"

"Yes."

"Did anything happen out of the ordinary?"

"No. Father seemed just as usual."

"Wasn't he excited? Gay? Something like that?"

"A little, when we got home. But no more than he would be naturally after a good dinner with cocktails and wine. He went up to bed and I stayed alone reading a book. I heard a crash overhead that sounded as if he'd fallen and I ran upstairs. He was unconscious on the floor beside his bed. I managed to drag him up onto the bed and tried to revive him with spirits of ammonia. He didn't stir. There have been times, this last year, when I thought I wanted the end to come quickly for his sake. But when I saw him lying so still, so far beyond my reach, it seemed all wrong. I tried to get our own doctor, but he was out. Then I called you."

"Is there a history of weak hearts in your family?"

As she looked at him, the answer came to her. "You're thinking of that fainting spell I had at Rosamund Yorke's. It's the first time I've ever done anything like that."

"Just what is the matter with your father?"

* * *

PERDITA'S lips moved. For a moment no sound came. Then she spoke the word Basil expected to hear. "The bones," she added slowly. "And there's no hope. By the time the doctors found out it was too late for X-ray treatment."

Basil sighed. "Tonight your father asked me why he should make an effort to recover. I told him that if anything happened to him suddenly like this you would carry a burden of guilt all through the rest of your life. It was for your sake he found the courage to rouse himself. Now, it's up to you to see that he never regrets it. You must have courage as great as his, perhaps greater."

Perdita's lips were white. "I won't—fail him again."

"Has your father any enemies?"

For the first time since Basil came there she smiled. "Father's never taken anything from anyone. He's always given. Why do you ask me a question like that?"

"The moment I saw your father tonight, I knew he'd been poisoned with some opium derivative. I suspect codeine because I know he had codeine in his possession. Jack Duggan died of codeine poisoning after meeting the same group of people you met at Dr. Zimmer's tonight. The coincidence is more than curious."

* * *

PERDITA leaned back wearily in her chair and closed her eyes. "Coincidences do happen. Father's been taking codeine for a month."

"So had Miss Shaw."

Her eyes opened in a flash of fear. "You mean . . ."

"If it were not for Duggan's death, I should assume that what happened tonight was either accident or attempted suicide. But I can't reconcile that with Duggan's death. Can you?"

"I—don't know anything about Duggan."

"Has your father any property that you or anyone else will inherit?"

She shook her head. "He has no property."

"Now I'm going to ask you something that may seem irrelevant: What did Rosamund Yorke mean when she told you about two months ago, 'You will notice only one thing out of the ordinary there—a certain number of us never speak of the future?'"

"She—I . . ." Perdita pushed her hair back from her forehead. "I'm so tired. I can't think. Let me talk to you some other time, Dr. Willing. Please."

A shrill note sounded four times in a monotone, then ascended half the scale and ended in a throaty chuckle. The trill was repeated, echoed. A dozen other treble notes joined the invisible chorus until the world seemed full of rippling, fluttering sound, half chatter, half song, with a dash of whistle. Outdoors, the sun-worshiping birds were hailing the first intimation of dawn.

Basil looked at her directly. "Did you give your father an overdose of codeine? And then change your mind, as many mercy-killers do, when he seemed to be dying?"

"No."

Only Survivor of Niagara, Man 59, Recently Dad Again

By HAL BOYLE

NIAGARA FALLS (AP) — Many have dreamed of winning fame and fortune by going over Niagara Falls in a barrel.

Six people have done it. Three lived—three were pounded to death by the waters.

The only surviving victor of the falls now is Jean Lussier, who bounced and floated in a home-made rubber ball over the Canadian side of the cataract July 4, 1928. He emerged uninjured.

Jean, a rugged former carnival stunt man, now works as a machine operator in an industrial plant here. He will be 59 this year and next Sunday will attend the baptism of his fourth child — a five-week-old boy.

Lussier, who has escaped the bad luck that caught up with the other conquerors of the Niagara, says he would like to go over the falls a second time. But with him it's strictly business.

"Show me the dough and I'll go," he said. "But it will have to be this year or next year—after that I'll be too old."

Jean would like to become the first man in history to go over the American side of the falls, which is particularly hazardous because of the rocks beneath. He already has designed a 3-layer rubber ball to be built around an aluminum frame. He says all he needs now is a sponsor willing to put up $3,000 to construct the ball—and the $10,000 fee he wants to make the voyage.

"I'll go over any waterfall in the world in a rubber ball," he said. "If the fall is too high, I'll put wings on the ball."

The first person to ride over Niagara Falls successfully was a doughty lady schoolteacher, Mrs. Annie Edson Taylor. Her vehicle was a crude wooden barrel with iron hasps.

According to local tradition at the last moment she said, "I don't want to go." But her backers reportedly poured her two water glasses full of Scotch, closed the hatch, and pushed the barrel out into the current.

Mrs. Taylor emerged below the falls unscratched, sold souvenir cards of her exploit at a local museum and died years later in the poorhouse.

An English daredevil, Bobby Leach, floated over the falls in an iron barrel in 1911. He forgot to strap himself in, and when he was pulled out of his metal cask he had a broken jaw and two broken kneecaps.

Leach had a rather unfortunate ending for a stunt man. While touring New Zealand with his iron barrel in 1926 he slipped on an orange peel—and died.

Lussier was the first man to do the job scientifically. He spent $7,000 and a year preparing. He constructed his rubber ball himself. He entered the ball at 3:05 in the afternoon, went over the 167-foot falls at 3:55, and came out of the ball at 4:23.

How does it feel going over the falls?

"I kept bracing for a sharp jar, but it never came," recalled Lussier. "It was like making a ski jump in slow motion. The ball was under water only a minute and five seconds."

In the next 14 years Lussier made a small fortune touring the world with his rubber ball and telling the story of his 78-minute exploit.

"I'm satisfied," he said. "It paid off for me."

Most local residents say his talk of going over the falls again is only verbal dreaming, but little Jean—he's five feet five inches tall, weighs 154 pounds — says stubbornly:

"Show me the dough and I'll go."

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

John DeYoung, director of the Sedalia Boys' Band, arrived home from Chicago where he purchased a monster bass drum and four sousaphones to be used by the band.

Jack McLaughlin of the McLaughlin Bros. Furniture Company made a visit at Henderson, Ky., after seeing the Kentucky Derby.

Raymond C. Lippard delivered the commencement address at the graduation ceremonies at the La Monte Central High School.

George C. Murray, inventor of the Murray Draft Gear, and other patents, died in Chicago. He was a former Sedalian.

Will Glass, a student at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., was made assistant editor of the college paper, "The Widow," for 1928. He formerly resided in Sedalia.

FORTY YEARS AGO

At the closing session of the Missouri State Medical Association in convention here, Dr. Robert M. Funkhouser, St. Louis, was elected president.

Mayor F. L. Ludemann appointed Edward L. Zoellig, a former deputy constable, a special policeman assigned to Liberty Park.

Vic Leffler, Sedalia, was elected first guard of the wigwam at the convention of the Improved Order of Red Men at Louisiana, Mo.

J. W. Sagar, foreman of the air service department of the Missouri Pacific Shops, left for a trip on company business to Little Rock, Ark. Mrs. Sager accompanied him.

Albert Einstein conceived the idea of his relativity theory while still in his teens.

Suez Making Recovery After Bitter Fights

ISMAILIA, Egypt (AP)—The Suez Canal zone has made a quick recovery from four months of blood battles and bitter guerrilla warfare.

Immediately after Egypt's abrogation of her treaties with Britain, last October, this stretch 104 miles long and 20 miles wide, running along one of the world's most strategic waterways, became the scene of daily clashes between British and Egyptians.

The British strung miles of barbed wire around the area, set up check posts on all roads leading into the zone and fortified main points inside the zone.

Egyptians countered with raids on British camps, sniping from ambush and all sorts of guerrilla attacks. Some 40,000 Egyptian workers employed by the British Army were withdrawn. In Suez and Port Said harbors, dockers went on strike.

Commerce and business throughout the zone came to a complete standstill while British Royal Navy units helped the handling of ships at Port Said and Suez. Traffic of vessels through the canal continued, somewhat diminished, during the months of crisis.

The changeover of Egyptian government after Cairo's Jan. 25 fire-riots and renewed attempts to solve the Anglo-Egyptian dispute through negotiation, have permitted a return to normal in the canal zone.

Road blocks have been removed. Traffic into and out of the zone runs freely. Only here and there a British military policeman armed with a submachine gun, directing traffic near a camp, reminds of the grim days of the crisis.

At Port Said, overlooking the Mediterranean, port activity is in full swing. All dock workers are back at work, an Egyptian governorate informant said.

The labor situation is less satisfactory in the British camps. A British spokesman said that although a back-to-work movement had started, the number of workers back on their jobs was "still below what was expected."

Elsewhere, all along the waterway linking the Mediterranean with the Red Sea, peace and work prevail.

Italian Films Booming

ROME (AP) — "Hollywood-on-the-Tiber" is turning out a record number of motion pictures this year.

By April the Italian film industry had finished 30 full-length pictures. Another 18 were before the cameras. A record number of high-budget films intended for the export market are included.

The trend is away from importing Hollywood players this year. French, British and Italian actors are replacing the more expensive American actors.

Drug Ordinance Needed

SINGAPORE (AP) — Penicillin and other antibiotic drugs are being offered for sale openly by grocers and street vendors in Malaya, the Malayan Pharmaceutical Journal.

Calling for an ordinance to control sale of therapeutic substances and antibiotic drugs, the official organ of the Malayan Pharmaceutical Association says there are loopholes for unscrupulous manufacturers to supply non-sterile ligatures and outdated and ineffective drugs.

A little boy loves to stay on the farm with his grandparents wanted to ride a horse, but at the moment there was no horse available.

"Then I'll ride a cow", he told his grandmother.

"You can't ride a cow", said his grandmother.

"Yes, I can," he insisted, "I can catch on its horns and climb right on his back."

"No you can't", said his grandmother, "You never rode a cow".

"Yes I have", came the imaginative answer, "Why, I rode cows before you and granddad were born—even before mommie and daddy were born"—then he picked out the two youngest members of his adult family and named them—"I even rode cows before they were born".

But, even such a cow rider grandmother held fast—she still said no riding of cows.—H. L.

The mother of two boys who lack seven days of being a year apart tells a story of taking the two youngsters to town with her a few years ago dressed exactly alike.

It was June and the youngest boy had had a birthday which made him four years old, the oldest boy had not had his birthday yet and so he was just four years old, too.

A strange woman looked at the two little boys so near the same size and said to the mother: "Are they twins?"

"No they are not" answered the mother—then the woman still interested said to the youngest boy: "How old are you?"

"Four" came the quick answer.

She looked at the other boy and said, "And how old are you?"

"Four" said the older boy and the woman looked at the mother questioningly.

After all, both boys were right and so was the mother—but it sounded as if somebody didn't know what he or she was talking about—then the mother hastened to explain that the boys were not twins but for seven days out of each year they were the same age. H. L.

Sometimes little girls feel disappointed because they are not little boys, and such a little girl is Sherry. She likes to dress like a boy, but she thinks the one wonderful thing in life would be to be a boy.

Not very long ago a little girl cousin was born in the hospital and Sherry, about four years old, went to the hospital to see the new arrival. In the nursery were a number of babies—all boys except Sherry's little cousin. That was a sorry plight, thought Sherry.

When at last she went back to see the mother of the new baby there was a bit of disgust in her voice:

"Ann", she said, "With all those boy babies out there, why did you have to buy a girl?"—H. L.

Attorney General McGranery Should Dust Off Old Report

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON — Now that Jim McGranery has become attorney general, it might pay him to have his subordinates dust the cobwebs off all the reports sent by other government departments requesting investigation of graft and corruption. He would get some interesting cases from the RFC on Congressman Boykin of Alabama, and the B. and O. railroad; from the Commerce Department on shipping and sales of tin to China; plus various others.

And if McGranery's subordinates fail to locate all these cases underneath the dust, this columnist will be delighted to help.

As a starter, the new G. A. might look at a case which the Commerce Department sent to the Justice Department months ago involving surplus government tankers, this one featuring Adm. Harold G. Bowen, former chief of naval research who assisted in developing the atom bomb.

Shortly after Bowen retired in 1947, he turned up as a stockholder in the United States Petroleum Carriers, Inc. He bought 250 shares at $2 a share, signed applications to buy four surplus tankers from the government, then sold out for $250 a share immediately after the tankers were delivered three months later. In other words, he reaped a fabulous $62,000 profit after investing only $500. His chief contribution was use of his name to wangle tankers from the government.

A similar quick killing was made by another stockholder in the same company, Robert W. Dudley, who, like Bowen, parlayed a $500 investment into a $62,000 profit in three months.

Here is the amazing sequence that led to the get-rich-quick profits by Bowen and Dudley:

The Greeks Had Friends

1. Dudley represented a group of wealthy Greek shipowners who were trying to purchase surplus tankers from the maritime commission. The application was turned down Sept. 12, 1947, on the ground that the applicants were not American citizens.

2. Two weeks later the United States Petroleum Carriers, Inc., was formed with Dudley and Bowen as stockholders. The only other stockholder was Robert L. Berenson, an intimate of the Greek shipowners, who held 100 shares. The new corporation promptly filed an application for tankers, signed by Admiral Bowen as president.

3. The maritime commission approved the sale of four tankers to Bowen's corporation on Dec. 30, 1947. Exactly one week later, both Bowen and Dudley sold out to the Greek shipowners' friend, Berenson. He, in turn, sold a 48 per cent interest to Sociedad Industrial Maritima Financiera Ariona, a Panamanian corporation owned by the same Greek shippers who had tried to purchase the tankers in the first place, but were turned down.

4. Berenson borrowed the money for this deal from Simpson, Spence and Young, New York fiscal agents, who happen also to represent Berenson's Greek shipowner friends. But what is even more peculiar, Berenson was able to borrow $165,000 without putting up a nickel security.

Thus, just a few weeks after the Greeks had been turned down as purchasers of the tankers, their Panama corporation turned up with the tankers — thanks to the influence of American friends.

Gathering Dust

This whole shocking case was investigated by maritime security officers and submitted to the Justice Department a year ago. And that's exactly where the case lies today, gathering dust on a Justice Department shelf. However, this column has been able to obtain a copy of the maritime investigators' secret report.

The report identifies the dominant Greek shipowner in the case as Aristoteles S. Onassis, who is Greek by birth, Argentine by naturalization but lives in luxury in the United States. He does most of his business through South American corporations, which give him the maximum tax benefits.

In case new Attorney General McGranery is unable to locate the report among the cobwebby pigeonholes of his department, here are some important quotes from it:

"Onassis and his foreign affiliates entered the corporate picture on Jan. 7, 1948 — after the (maritime) commission had approved the sale of the tankers. However, in late November and early December of 1947, United States Petroleum carriers informed the commission that financial and chartering arrangements had been made for the vessels in the application. These arrangements were apparently made by Onassis. Therefore, it appears probable that Onassis had an undivided interest in the corporation at the time the commission approved the sale of the tankers.

"On Jan. 7, 1948, Berenson owned 60 per cent of the stock of USPC and Ariona (Onassis' company) owned 40 per cent," the secret report continues. "Within the succeeding six months Berenson reduced his share to 48 per cent by selling ten shares each to C. N. Carver, A. C. Storen and N. Cokkinis at a loss of $1,500 on each block and ninety shares to Ariona on a break-even basis. What induced Berenson to sell this 12 per cent interest in USPC thereby giving up his majority interest just at the time the corporation had become a profitable operation? It was not for the profit; he suffered a loss. It was not for ready cash; other sources of cash were open to him."

Tax Irregularity

It was against the low, of course, for these ships to be sold to non-Americans. That is why the report points out that at least two of the three new stockholders, not counting Berenson himself, had been tied to Onassis in the past. So the report concludes: "At least three of the American principals in USPC appear to be available to Mr. Onassis to perform tasks which require United States citizenship as the primary qualification."

The investigators asked Berenson about his amazing, non-secured loans which enabled him to buy out Admiral Bowen and Dudley. Their report declares: "Berenson admitted that he had borrowed these funds on a personal loan from Simpson, Spence and Young, general agents in the United States for the Onassis interest . . . These personal loans are three-year, non-interest bearing, non-secured loans . . . Onassis insists that he is not the guarantor of Berenson's loans, but Onassis does a large chartering business with Simpson, Spence and Young.

"In investigating the possibility that Mr. Berenson's loans might have been secured by foreigners," the report adds, "We examined copies of his tax returns for 1947, 1948, 1949 and 1950. It was noted that a $12,000 dividend received by Mr. Berenson from USPC on March 15, 1949, was not declared as income on his 1949 tax return. When the question was asked as to whether the dividend was in fact his, Mr. Berenson stated that it was his. He stated that it was merely an oversight that he had not declared it on his tax return."

But the final eyebrow lifter was discovered in the stocks, themselves. Though Onassis owned 48 per cent outright and appeared to control the rest of the stock, each share carried the following restricted endorsement: "These shares are hereby sold subject to the condition that they may be resold or transferred only to citizens of the United States."

Thus, though it was specifically forbidden on the stocks themselves to sell or transfer them to a foreigner, Onassis ended up owning them.

Your Wardrobe

By Frances Sagaloff at Sage's

BE AS CRISP AS AN OCTOBER DAY IN JULY is every woman's goal in summer. To look and feel that way is an accomplishment, that must be worked on. First, plan your wardrobe so you will have cool dresses and be sure you have them fitted properly and the right accessories to go with them before you are ever ready to wear them. Have slips that are the right length and bras that can be worn with your sun dresses. When you bathe or shower don't rush—Keep your cologne in the refrigerator and use lots of it—if you will then dress casually, you will find when you have finished you will be fresh and cool and will look that way because everything will fit properly and will be well matched. It is more often the rushing and the aggravation of things not looking as you anticipated that gives you the rumpled warm look, rather than the extreme hot weather.

For summer entertaining out-of-doors; make some holders for glasses and containers for potato chips, pop corn or cookies out of tin cans you usually throw away.

Use a rounded stick about a yard long with one end of the stick tapered to a point to stick in the ground. On top of the other end of the stick nail a pound size coffee can right in the center.

You can hand decorate it or apply decals for color. This size can is good for pop corn.

Sardine cans make good ash trays and tuna fish cans are the size for holding glasses.

Ousler had a summer home at West Falmouth on Cape Cod.

Born Charles Fulton Ousler in Baltimore, Md., Jan. 2, 1893, he later dropped use of his first name for writing purposes.

He became a reporter on the Baltimore American in 1910, later becoming its music and dramatic critic.

Within a few years he was busy writing short stories for magazines. He became editor of the New York Music Trades in 1920 and editor-in-chief of Metropolitan Magazine in 1923.

His editorship of Liberty and his executive post with MacFadden publications followed.

Ousler wrote a number of mystery chillers, among them "The Spider" and a series with titles beginning "About the Murder of ....."

In addition to "The Greatest Story Ever Told," which also was the basis for a radio series, he wrote "Modern Parables," and "Why I Know There Is A God."

He was member of the Alcoholics Anonymous Foundation, the Dramatists Guild, the Authors Guild, the Magicians Guild, the Players and Dutch Treat clubs and the Baker Street Irregulars, an organization of Sherlock Holmes devotees.

Alcohol Morality Declines In U. S.

NEW YORK (AP)—Morality from alcoholism in the industrial population has declined 85 per cent in the past 40 years, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company reported today.

It said, however, that use of alcohol still is "more or less serious problem in the lives of about four million Americans."

It reported "of these, about 750,000 are true alcoholics — people who feel compelled to drink so excessively as to seriously harm their physical and mental health."

New Cafeteria At Hubbard Being Planned

Plans have been started by the Sedalia Board of Education to have the new cafeteria room built at Hubbard School this summer, but a decision has been made not to add a room this year at the Mark Twain School.

Both projects were discussed at the recent meeting of the board, and were tabled until other members, who were not present, could be contacted. Now that all have been seen, the decision has been made to give more consideration to the Hubbard project and let the Mark Twain room wait another year.

An architect has been ordered to draw up the plans and specifications for the Hubbard cafeteria. This is to be built between the two present buildings of the school so as to demand a minimum of construction. Walls of the two buildings will be used for the room and only the other two walls, floor and ceiling will be needed.

When the cafeteria is built, the present cafeteria space will be utilized as kitchen area and the two buildings will be connected.

It will be possible this fall, it was pointed out, to operate at Mark Twain without the new room. However, it seems likely at present, based on the school enumeration of children in that district, that one and perhaps two rooms will be needed at the school the following year.

(No. 3 of Series—Sugar Stains)

Many substances that contain reducing sugars cause stains when they contact your clothing. You cannot see them—but they turn brown from the heat necessary to clean and finish your garments. They may even turn brown when your clothes hang in your closet for a long period of time. What happens? The sugar carmelizes—just as sugar carmelizes when you make your favorite peanut brittle or carmel candy. On wool or silk such brown stains cannot be removed unless the fabrics are white, so that they can be bleached.

Balanger 99 Out Of 500-Mile Classic

Two Spots Remain Open In Big Race On Memorial Day

INDIANAPOLIS, May 24—(AP)—Thirty-one positions in the 33-car starting field for the 500-mile auto race Friday were filled today in record-smashing time trials marred by the wreck of the famous Belanger 99 car.

Tony Bettenhausen of Tinley Park, Ill., escaped with minor injuries after hitting the concrete outer wall in the Belanger that carried him to the American Automobile Association racing champion last year.

The car, Lee Wallard's winner in the 1951 Memorial Day race, was damaged too badly to be repaired for the final time trails Sunday. Bettenhausen had been running 136 miles an hour when he lost control on the short south straightaway, spun and banged into the wall three times.

Bill Vukovich of Fresno, Caalif., cracked two Indianapolis Motor Speedway records in the first of the day's 24 successful qualifying runs. Seven others qualified last Saturday.

Vukovich made the 10 miles at 138.212 miles an hour in a new four-cylinder car owned by the Howard Keck Co., of Los Angeles. He set a one lap (2 ½ miles) record of 139.427.

Record Quickly Broken

The one-lap mark stood only until veteran Chet Miller of Los Angeles took the track in a Novi Pure Oil Special and turned a lap in 139.600. A fused piston kept him from competing the 10 miles but he probably will run again Sunday.

Freddy Agabashian of Albany, Calif., hal set the old marks of 138.010 for ten miles and 139.104 for one lap last Saturday in a Cummins Dielse Special.

Vukovich was the AAA midget champion in 1950. He started in his first 500-mile race last year and was stopped by a broken oil tank early in the race.

The Memorial Day field, with two spaces open, has averaged 135.075 miles an hour in the qualifications. The full field last year had been the fastest with a 135.570 average.

Alberto Ascari of Milan, Italy, European racing champion last year, moved into the lineup with an average of 134.308 in a V-12 Italian Ferrari. His speed was about two miles an hour faster than speedway engineers had believed for the road-racing car on the big track.

Eight Start For The First Time

Eight of the drivers with qualified cars will start for the first time in the race May 30—unless they are "bumped" from the line-up by faster cars that qualify after the field is filled. They included Cpl. Jimmy Reece of the U. S. Air Force and Oklahoma City, Okla., who took a furlough to qualify the new John Zink Special at 133.993 miles an hour.

The other newcomers in the lineup are George Tichenor of Logansport, Ind.; Jim Rigsby of Lennox, Calif.; Art Cross of Brunswick, N. J., the 1951 AAA midget champ; Bobby Scott of Gardena, Calif.; Eddie Johnson of Cuyahoga Falls, O.; Jim Bryan of Phoenix, Ariz., and Ascari.

George Connor of Los Angeles headed the old-timers who qualified. He made the lineup for the 14th time in a car that lost its engine in time trials a week ago. He skidded 1,700 feet on that occasion after his crankshaft broke, but he came back with a new engine today and qualified at a brisk 135.609 miles an hour.

A Disputed Run Enables Giants To Edge Braves

NEW YORK, May 24—(AP)—The New York Giants edged the Boston Braves, 5-4, today, scoring what proved to be the winning run on a disputed play in the eighth inning.

With a runner on first and second and one out in the eighth, Willie Mays hit a looper to right. Rookie outfielder Bob Thorpe got his glove on the ball but it bounced away for a single and Bob Thomson scored from second base with Don Mueller moving to second.

First base umpire Lou Jorda, however, apparently ruled that Thrope had caught the ball and held it long enough for a putout. The Braves then tagged Mueller and claimed an inning-ending doubleplay but after a lengthy argument, plate umpire Art Gore ruled that Thorpe didn't catch the ball and the run counted.

That gave the Giants a 5-2 lead and as things turned out it meant the ball game for the Braves scored twice in the ninth.

The victory gave the Giants a temporary tie with the Brooklyn Dodgers for first place. The Dodgers were scheduled to meet the Phils in a night game at Philadelphia.

Hoyt Wilhelm, who had pitched brilliantly after relieving Max Lanier in the second inning, ran out of gas in the ninth, and was lifted in favor of lefty Dave Koslo.

Wilhelm gained credit for the victory, his fourth without a loss and his second over the Braves.

Ottawa Hurler Fires No-Hitter Saturday

OTTAWA, May 24 — (AP) — Charlie Bishop, star righthander of the Ottawa Athletics, pitched the first no-hit no-run game of the International League season today, beating the Syracuse Chiefs, 1-0, in the opener of a doubleheader. The Athletics also won the second game, 6-5.

A crowd of 5,676 fans saw Bishop pitch the first nine-inning no-hitter in the league since June 17, 1950, when George Bamberger turned the trick for Ottawa against Toronto with a 1-0 triumph.

Approximately 1,000,000 persons annually visit the British Museum and Kew Gardens in London.

Chiefs Open B. J. Season At Moberly

The Sedalia Chiefs journey to Moberly today where they take on the favored Moberly Miners in the Central Missouri Ban Johnson league. The Chiefs however are boasting of extra strength with additions of several Smith-Cotton High School players for this game.

Consensus expressed by rival managers of the CEMO circuit is the Miners are tops for the 1952 season. The Miners have picked up some additional strength since last season.

Season Opens Today

The circuit opens this year with only six teams, the league being trimmed from the 12-clubs of the 1951 season. Last year there were two divisions, the Northern and Southern, this season it is one league.

The opening day schedule will find not only Sedalia and Moberly playing but the Boonville Lions taking on the Ramblers of Mexico; the Brookfield Bombers, champions of both divisions last year, meeting the Columbia Chevrolets in Columbia.

President V. W. Meinert of Boonville voices optimism in appraising the league's over-all picture, though a host of 1951 standouts have entered the service and the armed forces will undoubtedly take several players before the season is half over. Legion products, in many instances, promise to plug the gaps.

Ten Miners Return

The opinions expressed by rival managers are based on the return of 10 members of Moberly's 1951 club, including two talented moundsmen, Norm Iverson and Kenny Kellogg. Between them they piled up a 17-9 rcord for the Miners last summer. Then there's outfielder Cal Voegtle, the league's home run king last year with nine circuit clouts.

But Uncle Sam may upset Manager Jim Hampton's well-made plans. At least three members of the Moberly squad may be wearing khaki before the season ends August 14.

The return of outfielder Jim Shepherd and a new $10,000 lighting system brighten the Mexico picture. Shepherd, a fancy fielder and a consistent hitter, joins five holdovers from 1951 in forming the nucleus of Manager Casey Neifert's club. The Ramblers will be tough, league managers agree if they get good pitching.

Boonville Looks to Legion

Manager Tony Kelley is counting on Legion graduates to help put the Boonville Lions in the race. They include outfielder Benny Robinson, first baseman Harold Gilliam and pitcher - infielder Chuck Sartain. The Lions also have three outfielders and two infielders back from '51. They lost Wilbur Farris, hustling third sacker, to the service.

The pitchers are ahead of the hitters at Sedalia, but Manager Bobby Brown figures the Chiefs will be pennant contenders. Bill Holst, ground-covering outfielder who pounded the apple at a .344 clip in 1951, is one of the key men in Brown's strategy. The manager himself, a curve balling right-hander, heads the slab staff.

Manager Raymond Fenton will field the club to watch at Columiba. Letfhander Don Poore and righthander John Willingham rank as two of the leading pitchers in the circuit. If the Chevrolets get the kind of defensive play they anticipat they'll be flag conscious.

Brookfield Sings Blues

They were singing the blues at Brookfield, but there's a recent note of encouragement. The Bombers, league champions last summer, were hit hard by the draft and enlistments and by players passing the 21-year age limit.

Catcher Bob Stewart and outfielder Kenny Roberts are two top-notch holdovers helping chase away the gloom. If five former Legion standouts come through for Manager Bill Thompkins, the Bombers could be the surprise team of the league.

Each Central Missouri club will play 20 games in a split season. The first half will open Sunday and close Friday, June 27. The second half race will begin Sunday, July 13, and wind up on Thursday, August 14. First and second half titlists will square off in a post-season series to decide the league championship.

Players to Meet

All Chiefs are to meet at the Cal Rodgers Motor Co., at 4:30 p.m. from where they will leave for the trip to Moberly.

Sports Scraps

(By D. "Kelly" Scruton)

PROBABLY no other baseball player has had this happen to him, few if any people have seen it, but it happened to Joe Imhauser a week ago. Actually it is something for Ripley, and there is proof.

Last Sunday Joe Imhauser pitched the Knob Noster Lions to a 9-0 victory over the Shanghi ball club and it was a no-run, no-hit game. It was his second such game in his pitching history, his first being back in 1946 while with the Junior Legion when he beat Marshall Legion.

The irony of it all was when Joe came back home and Sunday night went out to Liberty Park to play, as a fill-in, with the Ban Johnson Chiefs. Joe played shortstop as Bobby Brown hurled his No-run, no-hit game against the Junior Legion.

Seeing two no-run, no-hit games in one day is something but participating in two consecutive games in one day is really something.

SEDALIA'S Smith-Cotton High School Tigers really ran up against something last week when they faced Frankie Baumann, who tallied up a perfect game, no-runs, no-hits, and nobody reaching first base. It isn't a disgrace to lost a game to a pitcher like that, in fact it was nothing to laugh about when Bill Arnold pitched no-run ball up to the sixth when the Central High School of St. Louis came through with those two runs. Billy gets a pat-on-the-back from me.

The big wheels of the Majors all have their eyes on him. It was rumored some passes have been made with fantastic offers—but this is doubtful as it is understood no high school player can be approached until he is out of school.

It has been reported one approach was made, but the scout wanted him to play in the outfield, and Baumann had refused. A pitcher like Baumann to me is far better on the mound than roaming around in the pasture. He can take care of the outfield with his hurling.

SEDALIA Little League, Minors division obtained $400 Friday night through Dan Robinson of the Dan Robinson Nash Motor Co., who sponsored a fish fry at the Elks Club. Dan had high hopes the evening of food and entertainment would bring forth some men interested in Sedalia's youth.

He wasn't the only surprised one on that deal, several others who made it a point to "drum up customers" were disappointed —including yours truly. There was plenty of fish, and what I might say extra fine eating, and the some fifty men who were present enjoyed it, some gave freely of their money, others just "paying off."

However, the difference in the take and the $400 was put up by Dan who is hepped up on the Little League program. But the purpose of the fund raising campaign is not strictly "Little League", but a forerunner of organization of an overall recreational program.

THERE'S plenty of activity at the State Fair Grounds on schedule between now and the fair in August. On Friday the 30th, Memorial Day, there will be auto races of the modified stock cars better known in racing circles as "souped-up hot-rods". This race is only one of a series being sponsored by the V.F.W. Post 2508, one of them is to be run today.

Then on June 19 the second annual State Fair Rodeo is to be held when Brahma bulls, bucking horses, real live cowboys and rodeo clowns will invade Sedalia.

Jefferson Barracks Battled Way To 1945 Semi-Pro Crown

(Editor's note—This is the eighth article on the history of the Missouri State Semi-Pro Tournament written for the Democrat-Capital by "Hank" Williams of Sedalia, the Missouri semi-pro commissioner.)

The 1945 Missouri semi-pro tourney was held for the third straight year in Kansas City, and once again, was sponsored by the Gateway Sporting Goods Co., and directed by Mickey Kogan, the state commissioner.

An Army team, Jefferson Barracks of St. Louis, advanced undefeated through a field of 14 teams to the finals.

With the exception of their first game, JB had an easy time.

After the smoke had cleared following the semi-finals, for the first time in tourney history the teams that opened the tournament met for the title.

In the opener Jefferson Barracks whipped the Pratt-Whitney industrial team of Kansas City, and duplicated the feat in the final contest, 8-5, after a torrid battle which saw the lead change hands four times.

The champions advanced to the finals by defeating (in addition to Pratt-Whitney) the Leavenworth Red Sox, 13-2; the Kansas City Aireons, 6-0; the Versailles Merchants, 7-1; and the East Side Tavern of Kansas City 5-0.

Pratt-Whitney, after dropping its first game, came back with a bang to outclass Rosencrans Air Field, 5-1; the Sedalia Merchants, 5-1; Edrow Furnace of Kansas City, 8-6; and Sheffield Steel of Kansas City, 5-0.

The Sedalia Merchants, managed by Palmer Nichols, pulled the upset of the tournament by trouncing the Rupert Diecasters, one of the pre-meet favorites, 5-4. Nichols used three boys from the Sedalia Legion team in the tourney. They were Bud Thomas, now a member of the Memphis Chicks of the Southern Association; "Salty" Shoemaker; and Gene May, star hurler for the Legion. All three won the favor of Kansas City fans with their sparkling play.

As an interesting sidelight to the 1945 tournament, the following data is taken from the 1945 National Baseball Congress Annual:

"One of the best known managers in non-professional baseball is Palmer (Slug) Nichols, who piloted the Sedalia Merchants in the 1945 Missouri State Meet in Kansas City. This marked the ninth season in the past decade that he had participated, either as a manager or player, in the annul Missouri playoff, sanctioned by the National Baseball Congress.

"As manager of the Sedalia team for the past seven years, Nichols helped in winning 148 games, while losing but 48 during that period. He began his career in 1924."

The following players were picked on the 1945 Missouri all-star team:

C—Frank Zizak, JB.
C—Andy Yurchak, Rupert.
P—R. Kamphefer, Edrow.
P—M. Schuleberg, JB.
P—N. Hunthausen, JB.
1B—C. Mendlick, Rupert.
2B—B. Lee, Edrow.
3B—J. Ramano, East Side.
SS—H. Gold, JB.
LF—H. Novak, JB.
CF—A. White, JB.
RF—E. Marquis, East Side.
U—A. Jordan, Edrow.
U—J. Rozich, Pratt-Whitney.
U—B. Sandridge, East Side.

Arft was taken to Jewish Hospital for treatment and is expected to remain there several days for observation.

He was standing near first base when a ball hit by Bobby Young struck him before the Browns game with the Cleveland Indians.

Jalopy Races Today At Fair Grounds Starting At 1 P. M.

Jackson Leads By Slim Margin In Round-Robin

ST. LOUIS, May 24—(AP)—Jimmy Jackson of St. Louis took a slim one-point lead inthe men's division of the Westborough Country Club Invitational Round Robin Golf Tournament today.

Jackson, with plus 36, had Arnold Blum of Macon, Ga., and Jack Geiss, another St. Louisan, close on his heels—each with plus 35.

Mary Ann Villegas of New Orleans has a comfortable 11-point lead in the women's division at plus 37.

The final rounds of the tourney are tomorrow.

Geiss was the sensation today, turning in a 64, six under par, to tie the course record set by Jack Jacobs of Cedar Rapids, Ia., several years ago. The low total gave Geiss a whopping 30 points to bring him from ninth place to the second-spot tie.

Blum failed to better par for the first time in the tournament, but did match it with his 70.

The draw for tomorrow favors Jackson and Ed Ervasti, also of St. Louis, over Blum. Jackson has Jim Tom Blair of Jefferson City, Mo., Jim Frisina, Taylorville, Ill., and Harold Foreman, Chicago, in his set. Ervasti meets Art Ruffin, Wilson, N. C., Bob Cochran, St. Louis, and Don Schumacher.

Blum and Geiss are matched together along with the tough defending champion Dale Morey of Dallas and Dave Logan of Chicago.

The pre-tournament women's favorite, Barbara Romack of Sacramento, Calif., fired a 71, one under women's par today to take second behind Miss Villegas, who had a 69. Miss Romack, Miss Villegas and Betty Rowland of Lexington, Ky., now in third spot with plus 17, are paired together in the final round.

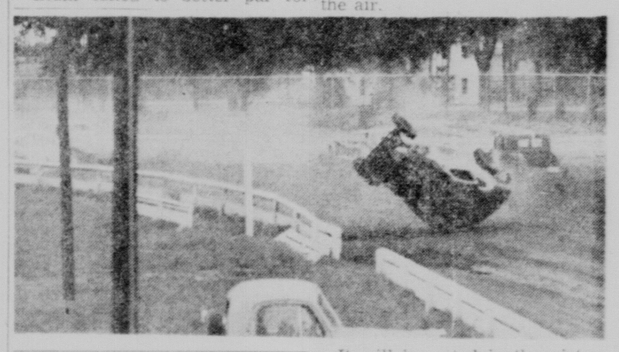
Today "Modified" Jalopys will turn the half-mile track at the Missouri State Fair grounds affording Sedalia thrill seekers another afternoon of excitement. It will be four hours of thrills and spills jammed full of breath-taking action.

Time trials are scheduled at 1 p.m. to be followed by the big events. Five events calling for two heat races of 10-laps; a dog race of 15 laps; consolation race of 25 laps and the feature event.

Many Daredevils Coming

Some of the daredevils who will be here from out of town are Crocket Thompson, Clinton, Herbie Thompson, Holden, Clyde Padgett of Marshall, the Pregge Motor Co., of Higginsville, Hainen Motors of Tipton, with drivers in from Oak Grove, Independence, Kansas City, Springfield, Warsaw and other surrounding communities.

It will be recalled two weeks ago Padgett furnished the thrill of the afternoon, that being in the feature event of the afternoon. Leading the pack of jalopies around the track for the first several laps, Padgett got into a squeeze, one car clipping his rear and causing his car to flip ino the air.



It will be noted in the picture, Padgetts car has just dropped from the air on its top in the center of the track. In the left, partly hidden by two poles are the two cars which caused the accident, it was between these cars that Padgett was trapped. Other cars are seen going to the far side of the track dodging the rolling-tumbling car.

Padgett Back in Race

Padgett's car was wrecked, his crash helmet smashed, but he emerged with nothing but a few bruises. He has completely overhauled the car during the past two weeks and it is ready to resume racing—Padgett to be behind the steering wheel.

The races sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign War Post 2508 promise to give a full afternoon of entertainment.

The umpires waited 35 minutes but there was no letup of the rain and the game was postponed.

Ted Kluszewski Hurt

Cards Absorb Fourth Loss In New String

CINCINNATI, May 24—(AP)—Rain and an injury to Ted Kluszewki dampened an 11-5 victory for the Cincinnati Reds over St. Louis today as the staggering Cardinals absorbed their fourth straight setback. Catcher Andy Seminick swatted consecutive home runs, one a grand-slammer, and drove in six runs for the Reds in their 14-hit barrage.

The Cards managed 13 hits off starter Harry Perkowski before Frank Smith relieved him in the seevnth and finished out teh game with hitless ball. They left 11 seventh and finished out the game was delayed almost a half-hour at the start because of rain and again for 40 minutes by a fifth inning downpour.

Kluszewski's injury came in the fifth when he skidded into a fence along the first base line trying for a foul fly. It was diagnosed tentatively at Christ Hospital as a pulled heel tendon and attendants said he should not be out of action too long. That was good news for the Reds, who now don't have a one experienced first-sacker, but used Eddie Kazak as substitute today.

Seminick's first round-tripper opened the Reds' half of the third. His second and fourth of the season came in the next inning with the runways loaded and one run already in.

Perkowski was in trouble almost al lof the 6 ½ innings he pitched, but timely fielding kept the Cardinals from scoring until their two-run fifth. They scored three more in the seventh and had the bases loaded when Smith came out and got the next two men out to end the inning. Perkowski gained credit for his fourth win.

Cloyd Boyer, who was knocked out in the fourth and was followed by three reliefers, was blamed for the loss, his second.

Gafford Holds Midpoint Lead In The Colonial

FT. WORTH, Tex., May 24—(AP)—Lean Ray Gafford, veteran Dallas professional, easily held the lead in the $20,000 Colonial Golf Tournament today as he whipped in with a one-under-par 69 for 36-hole total of 137.

While other high placers in the first round faltered and those well back rallied, the tall, slow-talking man on whose course the National Open will be played in June played steadily.

Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., did a 68 for 140 and second place but the best round of the day was by wee Ben Hogan, the Texan who now registers out of Palm Springs, Calif. Hogan, who disappointed with a 74 in the first round, blazed to a 67 today over the soggy 7,035-yard Colonial Country Club course.

Hogan moved up to 141 and also found another old campaigner along the tournament trail alongside him. That was Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago who shot a 69 today.

And Doug Ford of Harrison, N. Y., who had a 69 in the first round, did a two-over-par 72 today to tie Hogan and Mangrum for third place.

Amateur Joe Conrad, the North Texas State College golfer who tied Gafford for the lead in the first round with a 68, soared to 76 today and wound up with 144 for 36 holes.

Oklahoma Splits Pair With Iowa-State Nine

NORMAN, Okla., May 24—(AP)—The University of Oklahoma closed its Big Seven conference baseball season today by splitting a doubleheader with Iowa State, the Cyclones taking the first, 9-2, and the Sooners the second, 4-3.

The even break left Oklahoma, last year's NCAA champion, in sixth place in the conference with four victories and seven loses.

Iowa State, with a series remaining with Colorado, is in fourth place with a 6-5 record.

Jack Luhring held the Sooners to three hits in the opener. Don Burgess and Dick Gardell teamed for an identical performance in the second seven-inning contest, but Oklahoma used a hit batsman, a triple by pitcher Floyd Murphy and a long fly for two runs and the winning margin in the ninth inning.

Members of the group will be guests of the Fox theatre at the opening matinee performance of the new Alan Ladd technicolor western motion picture, "Red Mountain."

Feller Evens An Old Score With Browns

ST. LOUIS, May 24—(AP)—Bobby Feller evened an old score with the St. Louis Browns and Bobby Cain today by riding out a 13-hit attack that grew turbulent only once as he pitched the league-leading Cleveland Indians to a 5-3 victory.

It was a complete change up after what happened the last time Feller and Cain tangled. That meeting was a month ago and Cain walked off with a 1-0 decision as both pitched one-hitters.

Today Cain was out of the game by the fifth, mainly because of Larry Doby, whom he didn't face the last time, and Luke Easter, who caused Bobby previous trouble.

Doby got Feller off to a good start in the first inning with a three-run homer. Then in the fourth Easter provided what proved to be the winning run by walloping the ball atop the right field pavilion roof.

Doby missed the twin-one-hitter, resting in Cleveland with an injury. Easter was on hand, however, and delivered the lone hit for the Tribe that night.

Feller was in complete control today until he tried in the ninth. Then three singles and Jim Delsing's double accounted for the Brown's three runs and Feller's shutout faded.

Until that ninth, Feller allowed only one runner to advance beyond second base as he picked up his fourth triumph against three defeats this season. Cain, charged with the defeat, is now 3-3.

Cleveland got just 11 hits for the afternoon off Cain and Gene Bearden and Dave Madison, who followed on the mound after Cain's departure. Cain gave up seven of the hits, climaxed by the two home runs.

The fifth Tribe run came in the sixth on an error while Bearden was pitching.

It was the fourth straight victory by the Indians over the Browns and it gave them the lead in the series between the two temas to date, four games to three.

French Horse Reigns As English Derby Pick

LONDON, May 24 (AP) — A French colt is expected to win the 174th English Derby, scheduled to be run over a mile and a half of the rolling Epsom Downs track Wednesday. Post time is 10:30 a. m. (CST).

Eight of the probable 37 starters will cross the Channel in the bid to cop the richest Epsom Derby. It's worth $57,663 to the winning owner.

All the 3-year-olds will carry 126 pounds. The derby is open to fillies, but none is entered this year.

British bookmakers, who seldom make a mistake on a big race, made up their minds weeks ago that a French horse will win this nation's greatest classic.

The current top three choices in the betting are all French-owned and trained.

They are Paul Dubosco's Silent, outright favorite at 71 to 1; Eugene Constant's Thunderhead II, which won the 2,000 Guineas Classic over a mile at Newmarket April 30, and Marcel Boussac's Argur.

More Rookies Take Interest In Relief Pitching Duties

By RALPH RODEN

NEW YORK May 24 (AP)—Relief pitching, once unpopular assignment, is flourishing more than ever in the major leagues this year.

Joe Page, now out of baseball, gained fame and fortune as a relief pitcher for the New York Yankees and made the occupation a desirable task.

Jim Konstanty, still plying the trade with the Philadelphia Phillies, gave the fireman role a shot in the arm in 1950. Konstanty helped the Phils win the pennant that year and his yoeman work enabled him to become the first of his ilk to win a most valuable player award.

Since then, a lot of pitchers who dreamed of major league stardom as starting pitchers, have eagerly accepted the posts of rescuing faltering mound mates.

The 1952 season has produced a number of rookies who are keeping their families amply supplied with the necessities of life because of their ability to bail out staggering starters.

Brightest of the proselytes to relief work are Lew Burdette of the Boston Braves, Ivan Delock of the Boston Red Sox, Hoy Wilhelm of the New York Giants, Billy Hoeft of Detroit and Billy Loes, since graduated, of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Burdette, sharing the bullpen chores with Sheldon Jones, former New York Giant, had won two games and dropped one through Thursday. Both Burdette and Jones had saved a number of games for the Brave.

Rookie Delock, up from Scranton of the Class A Eastern League, sported a 22 record but the kid also preserved a number of decisions for his mose illustrious staff mates.

Wilhelm, a knuckle ball artist up from Minneapolis, and Loes each have won three games without a setback in relief. Loes' work was so impressive that he was rewarded with a starting job. The youngster came through with flying colors, a 2-0 shutout against Chicago.

Young Hoeft, despite losing a game, has distinguished himself while wearing the mantle of a relief pitcher. His cool pitching under fire figures to earn him an opportunity to start in the near future.

Oldtimers such as Konstanty, Dutch Leonard of the Cubs, Al Brazle of the Cards, Ted Wilks of Pittsburgh, Satchel Paige of the St. Louis Browns and Frank Smith of the Reds, also have pitched effectively in the pinches.

Yanks Recall Blues Hurler Who Beat 'Em

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—George Weiss seems to have stacked up a good stock pile of future Yankees on his Kansas City farm.

Bill Miller returned to the American Association from the parent club last week, embarrased the brass by beating the Yanks Monday night, 3-1 so the Yanks recalled the young lefthander a few days later.

Tom Ferguson of the Norfolk Virginia Pilot sends this one along from the tidewater.

At spring training in Sumter, S. C., Norfolk had a young pitcher named Lightning Jim Coates who now is with Olean, N. Y., in the Pony League. Col. H. P. Dawson, Norfolk club president, had signed the righthander out of Litwalton, Va.

One rainy day at Sumter, the Norfolk players were kidding the towering kid.

"Any rivers near your home?" a Norfolk player asked Coates.

"Couple streams," said Coates.

"Ever go swimming?"

"Nup, what's the use — I can't swim."

If things get tough, Manager Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Browns always can dig into the Eastern League for some power on his Scranton, Pa., farm.

Jack Crawford, a righthanded hitter, threatens to break all the records in Tommy Richards's book. Last time you looked, Crawford was hitting around .380 and 12 of his 18 hits were for extra bases, including eight home runs.

Leo Durocher, New York Giant manager, still has designs on Rex Barney, the ex-Brooklyn wildman now on the St. Paul farm.

"I know Barney can win for me," said Durocher. So far Barney has been just as wild as ever in his American Association starts.

Japanese Champ Won His 1st Ring Bout, Against A Kangaroo

TOKYO, Sunday, May 25 (AP) — Yoshio Shirai, the new world fly weight champion, won his first fight 16 years ago — against a kangaroo.

He won on a foul. The beast used his foot.

The quiet, 28-year-old Japanese knocked the flyweight crown off Dado Marino's head here last Monday night in a close battle. That was a long way from the go with the kangaroo.

Now Shirai is ready to fight any time, any place that his manager, Dr. Alvin Cahn of Chicago says.

"Sure, I'd like to go to the United States," he said in an interview, "but the arrangements are up to Dr. Cahn."

Shirai had a few fights in 1943 before the Japanese navy tapped him on the shoulder and told him to do his fighting some place else. He was a navy air mechanic and never saw service afloat.

Dr. Cahn came out in 1947 as a fisheries expert with the occupation, saw Shirai working out in a gym, recognized his possibilities and took him under his wing.

Rain Cancels Finals Of High-School Meet

ST. LOUIS, May 24—(AP)—Rain forced postponement of the final game of the Missouri State Baseball Tournament tonight at Sportsman's Park.

No new date for the contest between Central of Cape Girardeau and Central of St. Louis has been set.

Sportsman's Park will be in use by the St. Louis Browns each night until Thursday, which is an open date for the Major League club.

Many Forget Perfect Hook Walcott Used

By MURRAY E

NEW YORK, May 24 (AP)—Time has a way of beguiling the memory. There are many who saw Jersey Joe Walcott knock out Ezzard Charles with as perfect a left hook as you'll ever see who say now that the finishing blow was "a lucky one."

In case you, too, have forgotten, this is a reminder. There was nothing flukey about Old Joe's kayo clout. The ancient warrior's power was supposed to be in his right—the fist that had dropped Joe Louis three times.

Walcott practiced hour after hour to perfect his surprise hook for lean Ezzard. Charles watched Walcott's right like a hawk and was trapped by the left. The knockout wallop wasn't the first left hook Walcott connected with in that memorable upset. Jersey Joe was in full charge that muggy night and bounced several healthy hooks off Ezzard's chin.

Yet, the betting boys have made Charles a 12 to 5 favorite to become the first heavyweight champion ever to regain his lost crown on June 5. Louis was the last to try for that unprecedented feat. Charles blasted the Brown Bomber's hope. Will history repeat?

American League umpire Bill Summers was talking about the rule barring players from stopping to chat with players on the other team.

"We're supposed to report them for fraternizing and the fine for that is $10.'" said the veteran arbiter. "If we don't report them, we umpires are subject to a $100 fine.

"Will we report them? Did you ever hear of an umpire who would take a $100 fine to save a ball player $10?"

Brothers Breed Chinchilla

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Two brothers started with two pairs of chinchilla three years ago and now they have 67 of the precious rodents on their 250-acre chinchilla ranch.

The chinchilla, valued at $1,500 a pair, was almost extinct in 1922, says Louis and Charles Darko. The brothers say it will be several years before enough breeding stock is accumulated to put pelts on the market.

Leroy Hunt To Boys State

By Mrs. Leonard Phifer

WINDSOR — LeRoy Hunt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy B. Hunt, has been selected to attend Boys State to be held at Boonville sometime in June. He is sponsored by the American Legion. To be chosen one must be in the top third of his class schlostically, shall possess leadership, character, courage honesty, be cooperative and have an interest in government procedure.

The Weneeda Club of near Windsor met at the home of Mrs. Margaret Bunnell for its May meeting. The hostess served a delicious, contributed dinner to 19 members and two children.

The business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. Elva Shumake. Roll call was answered by giving a "Household Hint". Mrs. Genevieve Crawford gave the devotional, "The Wings of Morning". Mrs. Viletta Barnes gave a humorous reading and the remainder of the time was spent enjoying television shows.

The hostess received many nice gifts. The June meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Addie Craig. Each member is requested to bring their baby protograph. Roll call will be answered with, "An Anecdote about Father".

There were 18 present at the Baptist Brotherhood meeting the evening of May 11. Logan Sutherland presided at the business meeting in the absence of the president, Elbert Sutherland. It was voted to recommend to the church that the brotherhood be allowed to sponsor a drive to furnish a room at the hospital. Clark Henry had charge of the discussion program.

Mrs. Roy Carroll, Mrs. Oral Miller, Wayne and Keith of Lewis were Wednesday afternoon visitors of Mrs. Clara Powell.

Mrs. Nora Penny, Mrs. Cecil Lehnart and daughter, Warrensburg, Mrs. Chester Penny and three children, Kansas City, Mrs. Pearl Grose were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Cora Van Hoosier celebrating her birthday anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Carpenter and family, Warrensburg, spent Saturday night with his sister, Mrs. Frank Norcross and Mr. Norcross.

Mrs. Ernest Martin, Mrs. Clara Powell and Mrs. Leonard Phifer were Sedalia visitors Monday afternoon.

The Sally Gray and Mildred Wright circles of the Methodist Church met Friday, May 17, in the church dining room for a 1 o'clock luncheon.

After the luncheon a short busness meeting was held with Mrs. John Carter, retiring president presiding. Over 1000 Persons See Garden Club Flower Show Here Friday

By Hazel Lang

More than a thousand people saw the Flower Show Friday afternoon and night, held by the nine Sedalia Garden Clubs at Convention Hall, Liberty Park. Mrs. C. L. Carter was chairman and Mrs. E. W. Rucker co-chairman.

Mrs. L. H. Hodges, president of the Garden Club Council, announced the sweepstakes winners during the evening. The purple ribbon for horticulture awards went to Mrs. H. C. Sammons, Garden Club No. 3, and the purple ribbon for artistic arrangement went to Mrs. Wilford Acker, also a member of Garden Club No. 3. Each had a total of eight ribbons.

The green and white Council ribbon went to Garden Club No. 3, for a total of 33 ribbons—15 blue ribbons for horticulture and 18 blue ribbons for artistic arrangements.

The gold ribbon for the visiting club receiving the most blue ribbons went to the Green Ridge Garden Club for a total of three blue ribbons. Mrs. Acker is also president of the Green Ridge Club.

A TABLE OF ADORNED CANDLES, tapers in crystal or china holders combined with flowers for an attractive effect, was one of the new features of the Flower Show. (Photo by Padgett)

"MY MOTHER'S BIBLE"—One of the most heart-warming displays at the Flower Show had a theme of memories with the open Bible, the glasses in a case, the lighted old fashioned lamp and the vase of red rambler roses. It was arranged by Mrs. P. L. Strole and won a blue ribbon. (Photo by Padgett).

Mrs. Strole Has 67 Entries

The most entries made by any one person was 67 by Mrs. P. L. Strole who won a number of awards.

Among the visitors at the show were people from Marshall, Clinton, Warrensburg, Warsaw, Green Ridge, Cole Camp, Lincoln, Kansas City and a garden club woman from Oregon.

Junior Display Attractive

The Junior Garden Club display was particularly attractive with a wishing well over which climbed honey suckle. Pansy dolls danced around the edge of the well that really held water. Visitors at the show were greeted by little Junior Garden Club girls dressed in white blouses, blue skirts and perky little lace hats tied on with blue ribbon. The little girls carried baskets and gave each persons a flower.

The girls were: Marilyn and Marjorie McKinney, both of Whittier Garden Club, Mary Ann Wheatley and Sue Jean Hall, both of Washington Junior Garden Club, Leona Glover and Rosemary Gatewood, Mark Twain Junior Garden Club; Sue Ann Joy and Jane Ann Johns, Broadway Junior Garden Club, Mary Jane Snavely and Alice Middleton, Jefferson Junior Garden Club.

Praise For The Show

Mrs. F. M. Clyde of Marshall, regional director of the West Central Region, attended the show and praised highly the Junior Garden Club exhibit as well as the rest of the show.

One of the cleverest divisions of the show was the Mother Goose arrangements in which Little Boy Blue won a blue ribbon. He was fast asleep by a real little hay stack. Other ideas carried out were Little Bo Peep and the sheep she had lost, the gingham dog and the calico cat. Old Mother Hubbard, who with her dog stood beside an empty cupboard; Mary Mary Quite Contrary and Ding, Dong Bell, with a little well. In the bucket that hung in the well was a pussy cat.

Father's Day arrangements mostly were around pipes, cigarettes and ash trays.

Sea Shells Are Pretty

Unusually pretty arrangements were in sea shells. In the "On the Wings of a Song" the blue ribbon was given to an arrangement of red rose near which was a red bird. Several interesting ideas were found in the theme "Among My Souvenirs." It was difficult to pick out the cleverest ideas as it was to pick out the most beautiful flowers.

The visiting garden clubs' exhibits added much to the show with attractive arrangements including "Wrispering Pines", which combined flowers with evergreens, grey and pink arrangements which were unusually pretty, a huge basket of fruit and flowers and other exhibits.

Not only were there flowers in beautiful arrangements but there were specimen flowers, too, of named varieties, many people finding the names of flowers growing in their own gardens they did not know.

Wild Flowers There, Too

There were exhibits of wild flowers, of evergreen, of proper pruning and many other educational exhibits — yes, even on specimen of weeds.

But over in another place in the room was an arrangement of two lazy looking Pixies with a card, reading, "Ho! Hum! Weeds are fun as long as people grow flowers they might just as well take that attitude—because they are going to have weeds whether they like them or not.

To the DOCTORS of SEDALIA and Vicinity

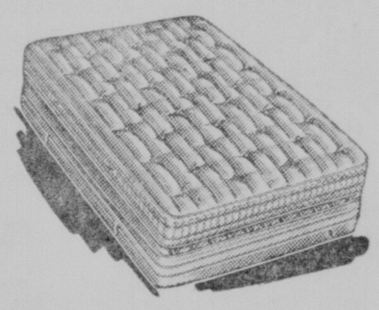
(top) Ordinary mattresses sag. Result: curved spine, poor rest. (bot.) Beautyrest coils support. Result: straight spine, right rest.



Simmons makes Beautyrest in two models. The Extra-Firm and Standard (Normal-Firm). Same construction, quality, price. Each $69.50

Gentlemen:

We are pleased to offer a new product by Simmons, which you may have read about in your professional literature.

The new Extra-Firm Beautyrest mattress by Simmons is the product of innumerable tests which have determined that it is especially suitable for those of your patients who require a firmer mattress support.

You are also aware that the average "firm" mattress does not give the degree of support required.

Simmons developed and constructed this new mattress on the findings of radiologists, laboratory engineers, and allied research experts. Further, special equipment was designed by the United States Testing Co. (an independent research organization) to measure the comparative firmness of a large group of mattresses.

In this test, the new Extra-Firm Beautyrest was firmer than all the other mattresses tested. Second in firmness was the Standard Beautyrest.

The "posture-right" support attributed to this new mattress was demonstrated graphically in laboratory experiments. Simmons patented individual coil construction offers firmness without rigidity, perfect support without inflexibility.

You can confidently recommend the new Beautyrest Extra-Firm mattress by name.

Your patients may also be pleased to learn that we offer this unusual new mattress on our usual convenient payment terms.

Garden on Canvas

GUELPH, Ont. (AP)—"When you paint flowers, it's always spring."

So says Effie Smith, 82-year-old self-taugh painter of flowers.

"Personally, I like lilacs. But pansies are the favorite," she said in an interview.

She estimates she has done 1,500 paintings of flowers, from the lowly daisy to the exotic orchid. She started in 1932 and for years has sold the pictures.

"I commune with nature by studying a spray of flowers on a table. My sister keeps tab on orders from all parts of the continent."

She had a brief fling at modern painting. She did fine with it but gave it up.

"I went back to flowers," she said. "Surrealism has its points but everybody understands a rose."

Pedestrain Plan Approved

DENVER (AP)—Four of five citizens favor the new "walk-in-any-direction" traffic lights, a news paper survey shows.

Under the system pedestrians can walk in any direction after motorists have had a turn at each cross street. The plan is confined to downtown Denver.

Sixty-nine per cent of visitors from other parts of the state who were polled also favored the innovation.

Refrigerator Woes

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—A young couple bought a refrigerator and a stove at a sale several months ago. But they didn't want delivery because their home hadn't been completed.

Their home was ready last month. They asked for the refrigerator. They were told they had to give three days notice. They did.

The store sent the wrong refrigerator.

Ridgway Confident US Can Protect From Germ War

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway is confident that measures taken to protect the health of U.N. troops in Korea would make control of germ attack easy if the Reds should launch one.

Speaking to a combined meeting of newswriters' clubs here, the general said yesterday he believed the Communists are capable of using germ warfare. "Your guess is as good as mine," he said when asked if he thought the Reds might do so.

Ridgway said that "unless they had a capability far greater than any of which I am aware" the superior health measures of the U.N. army would make control of germ attack easy.

The general said the Reds have been able to bounce back from Allied air attacks because of the Communists' "almost incredible ability for recuperation"—partly by pressing local populations into use. Ridgway said Asiatic troops require only about 10 per cent of the amount of supplies needed by U.N. forces.

The former U.N. supreme commander in the Far East said Red propagandists are reacting "desperately—furiously—to the growing strength and determination of the free world."

They are pouring out "an almost unbroken strear [illegible]ies," Ridgway said.

Ridgway is spending this week here en route to Europe, where he succeeds Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as commander of North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces.

Dionne Quintuplets Graduate Wednesday

CALLANDER, Ont. (AP)—It will be graduation day next Wednesday for the Dionne quintuplets.

They will be 18 the day they receive their diplomas at a special ceremony in the playroom of their own home south of Callander. Nine other girls their age will graduate with them. Then the special school, Villa Notre Dame, will close for good.

Papa Oliva Dionne said his five famous daughters will attend some girls' college next year.

The father said they have none—"they have been too busy to think about that sort of thing."

Bob Thomas In Hollywood---

Patricia Neal Upholds Films As Compared With Broadway

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"My dear, I simply can't wait to get away from these tawdry films and back to my first love, the theatah."

That's the equivalent of the comments a Hollywood reporter often hears while prowling the film stages. Hollywood seems to be filled with stars who can't wait to dash back to the legit. That's why it was refreshing to hear Patricia Neal uphold the movies vs. stage experience.

Miss Neal can speak with authority on both mediums. She scored a hit on Broadway as the mean Southern belle in "Another Part of the Forest." She was snapped up by Hollywood and has appeared in a dozen pictures since then.

"But I think the movie experience is much more valuable," she remarked on the set of "Something for the Birds." "On the stage, you aren't able to see yourself. You have the tendency to keep repeating the same mistakes. But in films, you have a chance to see your work and find out what you're doing wrong. You have to improve, or else."

Pat is candid about her work. When she has a poor picture, she admits it in no uncertain terms. When she has one that's good, she doesn't mind telling you about it.

The actress said that she doesn't regret having thrown her lot with films instead of the stage. When she made the move, Helen Hayes defended her in a magazine article.

"Miss Hayes said she didn't blame young stage players who succumbed to the lures of Hollywood," Pat remarked. "She pointed out that it wasn't like the old days in the theater when managers would take care of actors and actresses, and provide them with a steady run of plays.

"Nowadays, the actors are strictly on their own. They may get a good run of a year or two and then be out of work for a long time. It's no wonder that stage people seek the security of studio contracts."

It appears that Pat's off-and-on romance with Gary Cooper is off again. At least she has been confiding to friends that she is free and unencumbered and on the lookout for an eligible male.

But she said I wasn't supposed to mention that.

Swiss Women Are to Vote On Suffrage

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH

GENEVA—Swiss women will go to the polls for the first time in history here this year in a referendum to help decide whether they want to vote in the future.

The referendum will be confined to the canton of Geneva and will have only a "consultative" character Whatever the women want, the last word will remain with the men.

Switzerland is among the last countries in Europe where women are still denied the vote. All national, cantonal and local elections are confined to men and only men can become members of the national and cantonal parliaments and the local councils. A large body of public opinion is in favor of extending the right to vote to women, but under the constitution such an innovation must be approved by referendum.

Many Swiss cantons have held a referendum on this issue in recent years, but women's suffrage has invariably been rejected. Only the men voted. Less than a year ago, the canton of Vaud, which contains Lausanne, produced a 60 per cent majority against a law permitting local districts to grant women the vote on purely local issues.

One of the major props of the anti-feminist platform in all these campaigns has been the slogan, "Women don't want to vote." Since women have never voted in Switzerland, no one was able to prove or disprove this statement. Mainly in the hope of disproving it, the pro-feminist members of the cantonal parliament of Geneva carried by 51 votes to 36 recently a proposal to hold a "consultative" referendum among the women of Geneva.

Some of the most prominent advocates for women opposed the measure, on the grounds that a majority of the women might have so little interest in their "democratic rights" that they would vote against them, thus making the realization of universal suffrage—even in Geneva—more remote than ever. These members of the cantonal parliament recalled that in a recent opinion poll over 53 per cent of Swiss women declared themselves opposed to universal suffrage.

Lightning Causes Fire Deaths of 10

TAHLEQUAH, Okla. (AP)—Ten Cherokee Indians perished in flames Friday touched off by a bolt of lightning during a violent thunderstorm.

The members of two families, nine of them children, burned to death when their three-room frame dwelling was consumed by fire in a matter of minutes. A witness said the hut "seemed almost to explode. It went up like a torch."

Mrs. Dorothy Scott, about 30, died in a hospital shortly after four of her children and five more belonging to a sister-in-law, Mrs. Eunice Scott, lost their lives in the pre-dawn tragedy.

Runaway Scott, husband of the dead woman, was hospitalized along with his only remaining child, Edward, 3. The oldest child was 7.

Scott said he first fled in panic when the bolt struck, and later had time only to pull his wife and son from the inferno. His sister, Mrs. Eunice Scott, was away at the time.

Connie Has 50,000 Babies (Photos, That Is), Wants More

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Connie Bannister has 50,000 babies, and expects to have that many more.

Even though she keeps them locked in fire-proof file cases, she loves them all, and can recite the names, talents and individual winning ways of each.

The reason for her love is twofold: (A) these cherubs have made her the world's most famous baby photographer and (B) she just naturally loves babies.

These, of course, are picture babies. If she had a real, live baby of her own, Connie confides, she probably would be so fascinated by it she would lose interest in photographing other people's babies.

This pretty young woman with the Southern drawl, the golden red hair and the magic touch with a camera has known how to take care of babies ever since she was knee high to a grasshopper down in Tennessee. She was raised with nine sisters and five brothers.

Her new book, "Senator, I'm Glad You Asked Me That!" is filled with mugging babies who manage to create a hilarious satire on recent Senate investigations in Washington. It follows the format of her earlier success, "The Baby", which started a vogue for baby humor in photographic form.

Connie started as a n s photographer in New York and Florida.

Later she went to South America as photographer for the Maritime Commission, came back to New York to crash the big-time magazines with her photographic stories.

During the war Connie became a pin-up girl. The Saturday Evening Post published a picture of her in a bathing suit, in connection with an article she sold them.

Then Look magazine published a special overseas edition with a full-page picture of Connie and bathing suit, for distribution to GI's abroad.

For the last five years Connie has been married to Charles Fredericks, a flier of World War II, now vice president of Air Lifts, Inc., a company which is building planes for the government.

The secret of Connie's success with her baby pictures, she believes, is that she makes friends with all her small models before she gets out her camera.

Her studio in her big apartment on Central Park South, New York, is stocked with baby food, bottles and diapers. Says Connie:

"Yes, I guess I really should have some babies of my own. It's a shame to let all this training go to waste."

Boomerangs which come back to the thrower are said to be mostly toys and seldom used for hunting by the aborigines of Australia.

Shirley Temple Ill After Baby's Birth

WASHINGTON (AP)—Shirley Temple, the one-time child movie star, is recovering from complications following the birth of a son here, her husband says, but will probably be in the hospital another two weeks.

Her husband, Navy Comdr. Charles G. Black, told newsmen last night pleurisy and other difficulties followed a Caesarian delivery April 28.

"She is getting better, although she will be in the hospital for at least another two weeks," Black said. He added that the baby is fine.

Should Charge Nitrogen Cost Over Years

When sufficient nitrogen fertilizers are supplied for a corn crop of 100 bushels per acre, this is an expense usually charged totally to the corn crop.

This procedure is not fair to the corn crop according to George E. Smith, research soils man at the University of Misouri. Smith explains that when only the corn grain is removed, about one-third to one half of the nitrogen applied in chemical form remains in an organic combination within the stalks and leaves.

"Missouri farmers should keep in mind that experiments show this residual nitrogen on most soils with heavy clay subsoils is available in following years and has a marked effect on future crop yields," Smith said. Not only following corn yeilds, but wheat and oats in experiments following corn have also shown increased yields. Smith points out these increased yeilds prove the carry-over of nitrogen applied for corn into next crop season for readily visible and measurable results.

"It is not unreasonable to believe that effects not so visible, posibly hidden in quality differences more than quantity, carry into the third and later years after fertility is generously applied to the soils," Smith says.

Although experiments by the Department of Soils and numerous farmers in Missouri show the entire cost of adequate fertility applications is frequently more than repaid by the increase in yield of crops the first season, Smith points out reserve levels of the nutrients added stay in the soil several years.

To show the residual value of fertilizer, Smith cites an experiment in Putnam silt loam where corn is being grown in sequence with wheat and grass. The soil has received adequate amounts of mineral treatments according to soil tests. The corn received 150 pounds and the wheat 300 pounds as starter fertilizer at the time of seeding and increasing amounts of nitrogen were plowed down for corn to give the increasing yields of both corn and wheat as follows:

Nitrogen No nitrogen Applied	Corn Yield 2 yr. ave.	Wheat Afater Corn 1 Yr.
	86.2 Bu.	15.7 Bu.
33 lbs. N.	95.7 Bu.	18.0 Bu.
66 lbs. N.	105.5 Bu.	19.0 Bu.
132 lbs. N.	114.5 Bu.	22.7 Bu.
200 lbs. N.	116.7 Bu.	28.0 Bu.

The first thing you will notice from the table of yields is the significant increase in the yield of corn as nitrogen was increased up to 132 pounds per acre and that adding amounts beyond this and up to 200 pounds did not increase the corn yield much over the 132 application.

However, you should notice that the wheat following the corn which had been heavily feterilized increased with each extra application of the nitrogen and a jump from 132 pounds to 200 pounds of nitrogen produced a five bushel increase on the following wheat crop. This was the most significant increase of wheat for any of the increments of nitrogen applied.

"The residual effects of these 200 pounds of nitrogen raised the yield of wheat 12.3 bushels per acre over the yields where 300 pounds of 3-12-12 was applied per acre with the seeding of the crop," Smith said. He added, "This increase in wheat alone coming as a residual effect only would pay for all the nitrogen applied in producing such returns."

In connection with heavy applications of nitrogen, Smith warns that tests by the Missouri Experiment Station and farmers are showing that high nitrogen alone without attention to other elements cannot maintain high yields of corn with strong stalks for many successive crops. Soils that may not respond with yields as large as 50 bushels to other elements than nitrogen as soil treatments will require additional minerals to produce 100 bushels when given the nitrogen.

Medium to severe lodging corn may result and potassium appears to be the most limiting element in crop production after soils have been limed and after adequate amounts of nitrogen and phosporus have been applied. It is well known that a deficiency of potassium will cause corn to lodge.

"For example, corn with adequate nitrogen and phorporus, according to tissue tests and absence of deficiency symptoms but with a soils test of 100 pounds of potash produced only 50 bushels of corn per acre with 48 per cent of the stalks so badly lodged that the ears on them would probably not have been gathered by a mechanical picker," Smith said.

When 300 pounds of muriate of potash per acre were plowed down and 30 pounds of potash added in the stahter fertilizer, the yield was increased to 110 bushels per acre with only 3 per cent of the stalks lodged!

"In trial experiments designed to obtain still higher yields, where increased nitrogen was applied, yields of 150 bushels per acre were obtainsd," Smith explained. However, the increasing of the potash above the amount normally considerel adequate failed to prevent lodging. It is possible the plants did not absorb enough potassium to balance the nitrogen Smith believes. And he says it is highly suggestive that at this high level of production some other element may not be present in adequate amounts or ratios.

Smith also said that the possibility that deficiencies of secondary or trace elements may develop under heavy fertilization is being given attention in experimental work now.

New Profession, That of Soil Conservationist, Is Growing

By OVID A. MARTIN
Associated Press Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new profession is growing out of the nation's need to save its soil for feeding future generations.

The Agriculture Department calls it the profession of soil conservationist.

In a new bulletin, "Careers in Soil Conservation," the department paints a picture of a new and growing field for college students and others trained in agricultural engineering, forestry, agronomy, wildlife biology and conservation.

The bulletin says there is "so much to be done" if the nation is to feed its rapidly increasing population. It points out that there is little new land and that existing farms must carry the burden.

"Soil conservation simply means using the land to produce its maximum of the food and fiber we need," it says. "Long-range conservation must be well planned and executed in accordance with sound, scientific principles. Each acre should be used for the things it is best suited to do — and protected according to its needs."

The task of the conservationist is to show the farmer how each acre should be used. Tools include terracing, Contouring, strip cropping, drainage and irrigation, crop rotation, grasses, legumes, trees and shrubs — either singly or in combination.

Already some progress has been made by the department, the states and local conservation districts in applying conservation practices. Yet the great bulk of the land is used, the department says, in hit-or-miss fashion.

Agencies which are offering an ever-widening opportunity to those interested in soil conservation as a career include the U. S. Soil Conservation Service, state conservation commissions and committees, soil conservation districts, educational institutions, some commercial and industrial concerns and civic organizations.

Soils and Crops M.U. Field Days Are June 2-3-4

The annual soils and crops field days at the state experiment farm at Columbia are June 2, 3 and 4, according to the report of Roy I. Coplen, county extension agent.

Manday June 2, has been set aside for South Missouri farmers and Tuesday, June 3, is for North Missouri farmers. On Wednesday, June 4, a new feature has been added. Many non-farmers are interested in learning more about the soils and crops experimental work at their station.. They are issued a specitl invitation to make this visit on June 4 and see the hundreds of varieties of crops and the scores of different soil treatments being tried out.

On the tour Monday for South Missouri farmers and Wednesday for non-farmers, stops will be made at many stations and speakers will explain the purpose of the experiments and results being secured.

The tour starts at 9:30 a. m. and will be over at 3:30 p. m.

The work at the experimental station, in developing new varieties, cropping systems and soil treatments, has resulted in increasing Missouri farmers' net income and in adding greatly to the income of the state of Missouri.

Further information on the trip may be secured from the Extention Office, 118½ West Third, Sedalia.

Getting Most From Pastures

The more pasture that can be used in the production of dairy products the more economical is the production in both labor and expenditures, says Roy I. Coplen, county extension agent.

Dairymen need a pasture system, not just a pasture. A pasture system will provide pasture over a long period of time by making use of a number of different crops suited to different seasons of the year. Such a system provides extra pasture when needed most . . . in early spring and late fall and during the hot summer months.

Small grains and sweet clover give the earliest spring pasture. These crops along with improved pasture should be included in every day pasture system. During the hot, dry months of July and August, lespedeza and sudan grass still provide the best pasture. In the fall, improved permanent pastures supplemented by small grain and sweet clover supply ample grazing and can be followed by tall fescue-legume mixture for winter pasture

The renovation of permanent pasture offers dairymen the best foundation for economical milk production. Many dairy farmers are finding improved pasture gives up to 400 cow—days per acre annually. And in some cases, dairymen have produced $400 worth of milk per acre from improved pasture, as reported by E. T. Itschner, dairy extension specialist.

Pasture rotation plays an important part in the success of any pasture management system. Rotate grazing so that one field can be pastured off and then allowed to regain its growth while your cows are grazing another field. Fertilization of the pasture between grazing periods and clipping to prevent spot grazing is sometimes necessary to keep the pasture in good growth.

Proper feeding of the herd is also necessary in getting the most production from dairy pastures. Provide your cows plenty of energy producing feed during early spring when the grass is lush and high in protein. As you go into the summer grazing period, increase the protein content of your concentrate feed in order to overcome deficiences of protein in the maturing grasses and legumes.

First Suffragist

Woman suffrage first spoke in America in Maryland, in 1647, when Mistress Mary Brent, heir of Lord Calvert, demanded a place in the legislature of the colony as an extensive property holder.

How to Start A Balanced Farming Plan

Most Missouri families who own farms take pride in having a good farm—one that produces high yielding crops and luxuriant pasture; one that is free from ditches, eroded areas and waste land; one that is well-stocked with high quality and profitable livestock; one that is equipped with good, well- arranged buildings, a modern farm home and pleasant surroundings; and, finally, one that pays, financially. This is necessary for continuous improvement, a high standard of living and great opportunity and security for the family.

You might say, "these things are desirable but with high costs, shortages of labor, and other difficulties, we just can't get much done."

Little can be done in hap-hazard, hit-or-miss fashion, and certainly it all can't be done at once. But, thousands of Missouri farm families are achieving many of these things—much faster than they thought possible—through a system of Balanced Farming.

"How can I get started with a Balanced Farming program?" is a question often asked. Here are a few suggestions which will help you in starting such a system of farming.

(1) Talk to some of your neighbors who already are doing Balanced Farming. Ask them how they got started and how it is working.

(2) Talk to your county agent. Get a copy of Circular 537 which pictures a step by step procedure of working out a Balanced Farming plan.

(3) Secure a Balanced Farming Workbook from your county agent and record, in an organized way, the resources available to you and your family.

(4) As a family group, try to visualize your farm and home as you would like to have them several years hence . . . no goal can be achieved until it is definitely and clearly established.

(5) Do something now — this year—that will give you a start on your program. Concentrate your efforts on something that will pay off quickly. For example, test your soil, put on all the soil treatment needed and grow 100-bushel corn this year. The extra profit will help you pay for the bathroom, modern kitchen, good herd bull, or some other permanent improvement included in your plans.

(6) If you want to cash in on Balanced Farming faster, see your county agent about joining a Balanced Farming Association wherein you and neighboring farm families in the county can get the help of a specially trained county agent in planning and developing Balanced Farming on your farm.

Firearms Controls Relaxed

BELGRADE (AP)—With apparent confidence in its domestic security precautions, Yugoslavia has relaxed its safeguards against purchase of firearms, munitions and explosive materials.

Hunting clubs, for example, now will be able to buy ammunition without obtaining a special permit from the ministry of interior.

In announcing the relaxation, the official press said the restrictions went into effect after the war for "general security."

Every Farm Must Prevent Flood Losses

When there's more water than the soil will hold, some of the water is going to run off, but often runoff can be held in place, says James A. Harvey, chairman of the Pettis County Production and Marketing Administration Committee.

He calls attention to Agricultural Conservation Program practices that can help farmers reduce flood damage.

"I look upon my farm as one of the many flood prevention stations which, if they were all as effective as they can be in checking and controlling runoff, would help a great deal to reduce floods and flood damage."

He points out that there are times when melting snow and heavy rains put more water on the ground then can be taken care of and runoff naturally follows: But many soil and water conservatives practice not only help make the land more productive but also help slow up the movement of water and reduce damage accordingly.

Specifically, the chairman indicates that one of the best ways to slow down runoff and to get more moisture into the ground is throught good stands of grass and legumes. It often is not practical or desirable to have all the farmland in grass but on parts of the farm where erosion and runoff are serious, the problem often may be solved by putting the land into pasture.

Among other practices he also mentions contour farming, as well as terraces which help to increase the amount of water that soaks into the soil, thereby slowing down the runoff. All such practices help keep the water from moving down at once and to that extent helps to reduce the crest of floods.

Practices being stressed this year in the Agricultural Conservation Program in Pettis County which contribute to flood contral are standard and diversion terraces, legume seeding and pasture improvement seeding.

The term "Old Guard" in U. S. politics refers to the conservative or stand-pat element in the Republican party.

HERE'S THE Know-How FOR YOUR HAYING JOB

THE MASSEY-HARRIS FORAGE CLIPPER
IT CUTS . . . IT CHOPS . . . IT LOADS . . . HAY OR ENSILAGE
● With forage crops playing a larger part in our modern farming practices, a new and faster method of harvesting hay and ensilage became necessary. To meet this problem, Massey-Harris engineers designed and field-proved the Forage Clipper. An all-purpose forage harvester, the Forage Clipper handles any hay or ensilage crop—cuts, chops and loads in one time-saving, labor-saving field operation. With the rack hitched behind and the elevator pivoted for rear delivery, one man handles the job alone. If you prefer, you can lift the cutting cylinder out of the way and mow and load your crop unchopped.
PICK-UP ATTACHMENT: Equipped with pick-up attachment, the Forage Clipper is right at home handling windrowed hay for chopping, or direct delivery to the rack as desired. Where disposing of straw presents a problem, the Forage Clipper scores again. If you save your straw for bedding, simply load the straw unchopped to the rack; or if you want to plow your straw under, the Forage Clipper will pick it up, chop and spread it over the ground. A mower, a chopper, a loader—that's the Massey-Harris Forage Clipper . . . a forage machine designed to do the job faster and more economically.
CORN ATTACHMENT: Here's the modern way to harvest your ensilage crops. With a corn attachment installed, the Forage Clipper steps in to harvest your corn in a way you'll appreciate. The snouts ride close to the ground cutting the stalks at the base . . . fields are left clean, ready for plowing. Ears, leaves and stalks are chopped and loaded to the rack or truck in lengths from ⅜" to 1½" depending upon the cylinder speed. The entire harvest requires but one field operation. Be sure to see us for the complete story of the Forage Clipper next time you're in town. Ask for your copy of the Forage Clipper folder.

Nervy Worms
